Exuberant American boyhood in the full vigor of youth triumphant, marched proudly this afternoon through the principal streets of Lowell in alert and most imposing procession in observance of "Loyalty Day," the climax of Boys' week.

The parades were led by the emblem of their beloved country—the Stars and Stripes, floating high and proudly in the van of a vividly patriotic and enthusiastic column of young Americans and as thousands of adults saw them pass and applauded them to the echo the thought could not dawn that the heritage of home and country will be safe in their hands when the years add to their stature and place the mantle of manhood upon their sturdy shoulders.

hall steps, surrounded by high city officials and others. Through it all he remained a quiet, thoughtful, soft-spoken schoolboy, unaffected by his sudden raise from the grammar school playground to the mayor's office. Picked from all the boys of Lowell to be mayor of the city for a day, in connection with the Boys' Week observance here, George Heeley took his new and unusual honors with a simple appreciation that charmed all who observed him.

The day was not a busy one at the mayor's office and handshaking seemed to be the most important thing.

BODY OF LOWELL MAN TAKEN FROM RIVER

The body of Matthew H. Carney, 45, of 656 Bridge street, who leaped from the central bridge into the Merrimack river about a month ago, was recovered about two miles down-stream this morning by Charles Smith, R.F.D. 2, Lawrence boulevard. The body was removed to the undertaking rooms of St. H. McDonough Sons, where it was later identified by relatives.

Mr. Smith discovered the floating body about 20 feet off shore while he was repairing a stone wall fronting the river opposite Camden street in Kenwood. The head was totally submerged, but other parts of the body were visible. At first unable to reach the object, Mr. Smith procured a pole and after following the body as far as Perry street, a distance of about 200 yards, he was able to reach it and bring it to shore.

BOOM GEN. DAWES FOR VICE PRESIDENCY

CHICAGO, May 17.—The first public booming of Erik Gen. Charles G. Dawes, former director of the budget and chairman of the committee of experts of the reparations commission, for the republican nomination for vice president, has been started here, where thousands of placards, bearing likenesses of President Coolidge and Dawes have been mailed.

The crisis hour the slogan "America first" with biographies of both and a tribute to Dawes on the reverse side, and are designed for framing.

General Dawes is said to have expressed scant sympathy with the idea of making him President Coolidge's running mate when the proposition was first made to him.

Hundreds of Boys Take Part in Track Meet, Feature of Big Boys' Week Celebration

JOHN EMERSON, BUTLER JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL, WINNING 100-YARD DASH

Boys of all ages and sizes and in all sorts of nondescript costumes by the scores and by the hundreds flocked to the South common this forenoon to take part in the track and field meet, conducted as a part of the Boys' Week celebration.

In order that all boys might have a fair chance of competition the meet was divided into three sections, Junior, Intermediate and senior, respectively for lads of the ages of 9 to 12 years, 12 to 15 years and 15 to 18 years. The juniors held their events on the hill near the Edison school, while the intermediates and seniors used the baseball oval. There was not much head or tail to the program, but no one seemed to care and the boys particularly had a good time.

The individual prize winner of the meet was A. Phipps, competing in the senior division, who collected eight points and thereby wins the prize of a year's free membership in the Y.M.C.A. He was the winner of the standing broad jump and finished second in the high jump.

The races in the senior division included hundred yard dash and one-half mile run and the results were as follows:

100 Yards—Won by John Emerson, Butler school; J. Hedstrom, high school, second; Daniel Quill, high school, third. Half-mile—Won by H. St. Lawrence, high school; Joe Lindley, high school, second; Fred Burt, high school, third.

The high jump and standing broad jump events had a surplus of entries, with the winners announced as follows:

Standing broad jump—Won by Phipps. Continued to Page 2.

Hundreds of Armed Men Search for Bootleggers Who Killed Special Policeman

Gun Battle on "Bootleg Trail" From Montauk Point to New York

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., May 17.—Hundreds of armed men scoured the woods of Suffolk county, Long Island, early today searching for a band of bootleggers who last night shot and killed Ferdinand Downs, a special policeman of Southampton.

Downs, in company with several federal prohibition agents, was guarding the "bootleg trail" from Montauk Point to New York, when he noticed a car approaching without lights.

Downs started to follow and a running battle with revolvers and shotguns followed. A bullet passed through the policeman's head, killing him instantly.

An alarm was flashed through the county and the whole countryside immediately arose in arms. Roads were filled with members of the Ku Klux Klan bearing rifles and shotguns, volunteer firemen and hundreds of armed citizens.

ESSAY CONTEST WINNER

George Heeley of Green-halge School Inducted Into Office as Boy Mayor

Received $10 in Gold for Essay on "The Responsibility of Being a Boy"

In choosing George Heeley as "boy mayor" of the city today and awarding him the $10 prize for the best essay on "The Responsibility of Being a Boy" the committee of judges in the contest sponsored by the Rotary club, found they had quite a job on their hands. A large number of essays were submitted by boys from all schools of the city and many were regarded as reaching a high standard of excellence.

Master Heeley, who lives at 105 Boynton street, and is a student at Greenhalge Grammar school, was closely pressed for the honor by Leo Kron, of St. Patrick's school and Joseph M. Quinn of Moody school, who were awarded honorable mention, without preference, there being but one prize.

The judges were William Trotter, E. A. Renner, and Charles D. Harrington, local newspapermen. The winning essay follows:

"The boy of today will be the man of tomorrow. The boy of today has the responsible position of an employer in all civic affairs, with the realization that very shortly he will be a participant. He must keep wide awake to what is going on around him in the city, state and nation, so that when he attains his majority he will be more able to participate, to make decisions, to render judgment and to act more wisely than his predecessors have done."

"The boy who appreciates his responsibility realizes that he owes it to his country as well as to himself to

Degree Work Impressive

The degree is to be exemplified by the officers of Cabot Province of Massachusetts under the direction of Master Louis Watson. Among the invited guests will be Cardinal O'Connell and U. S. Senator David I. Walsh. A reviewing stand has been erected in Gorham street, near St. Peter's church, where the cardinal will view the parade in St. Peter's church after the Auditorium ceremonies. The cardinal will pontificate at benediction in St. Peter's.

The air knights will march in evening dress and will wear the silk hat and carry the baldric and sword. It will be a brilliant spectacle indeed with the uniformity of dress as the outstanding feature.

The line of march will be from Memorial Auditorium, to Kearney square, to Central to Gorham, where a hall will be made at St. Peter's parochial school to permit the guard of honor to leave the line of march and proceed to St. Peter's rectory to escort Cardinal O'Connell to the reviewing stand. The guard of honor will be headed by His Honor, Mayor John J. Donovan and Chief Edward P. Saunders. Sixteen faithful navigators of visiting assemblies will be included in the guard. State Treasurer Thomas J. McGrath will represent the state council in the guard and Dr. James B. O'Connor the Lowell candidates for the degree. The column will then proceed up Gorham street past the reviewing stand to Mann square, to Highland street, counter-march and return to St. Peter's for benediction. After church the marchers will parade to Monument square and then proceed to Memorial Auditorium. The parade will leave the Auditorium for the church at 4.30 o'clock.

In the parade from the Auditorium to St. Peter's church and return, the line of march will be in charge of Chief Marshal Thomas J. O'Donnell. Bishop Delany assembly will be marshalled by John C. McQuaid, P. E.

At last night's meeting of the committee, it was decided to close the doors of the Auditorium at 1.30 o'clock. The degree work will get under way at 2 o'clock, and will be followed by the parade. Members of Bishop Delany assembly will occupy the left of the line of march. Master Watson, Mayor Donovan and Faithful Navigator Donohue will be in the lead, followed by the navigators of sixteen district assemblies.

Hon. Dennis J. Murphy, chairman of the reception committee, and Dr. Richard J. McAlvey, classmates of United States Senator Walsh at Holy Cross college are to motor to Clinton to drive the senator to Lowell in the late afternoon.

In the evening a banquet will be held in the Auditorium. Louis Watson, master, will preside, and Hon. James B. Casey will be toastmaster. Among the toasts which will be responded to are the following: "The Church," Rev. John H. Healey, O.P.P.G.; "The Order," Hon. William C. Prout, state deputy; "Our City," Hon. John J. 50-yards—Won by J. Davis, St. Peter's school; C. Baldwin, Greenhalch, second; A. Kozel, Greenhalch, third. A special 50-yard dash was won by John Emerson, with Roger Connor, second and Francis Gleason, third.

CITY TO BE IN ON MELON CUT

Rep. Slowsky Feels Certain Poll Tax Surplus Will Be Returned to Cities

Fails in Effort to Provide Sum Only for Soldiers' Relief Work

Representative Charles H. Slowsky is authority for the statement that the report of the ways and means committee recommending proportionate disbursements to contributing municipalities be made of the $2,000,000 surplus raised under the workings of the poll tax clause of the state soldiers' bonus bill will undoubtedly prevail. When the report was made in the house last week Mr. Slowsky, quick to sense the fact that there is nothing provided as to what the city should do with the money, offered the following amendment:

"Mr. Slowsky of Lowell moves to amend House Rule No. 1764 by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"Section 2. The sums so appropriated to the various cities and towns shall be placed under the management and control of the local department of soldiers' relief, or the office or officers acting in such capacity, where there is no such board in any city or town. It is to be used for the purpose of aiding veterans and their families who, in the discretion of said board, are in need."

The amendment, the first to be offered, was killed by a 56 to 38 vote. Several other amendments followed in rapid succession but the ways and means committee members found it best to keep the recommendations unchanged and were successful.

The City of Lowell will receive $55,407 as its share if the present plan goes through. There will be no "strings" on it, and the city may dispose of the sum as it sees fit. Councilman John W. Daly has already suggested from the floor of the Council that it be applied to the salary allotment of the police and fire departments and that with this sudden fortune the city might feel like raising the discussion for a pay raise for the members of these departments.

DEMS UNLIKELY TO FIGHT G. O. P. WITH PHRASES

BY HARRY B. HUNT.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—George H. Moses, senior senator from New Hampshire, ex-diplomat, ex-journalist and example of sartorial elegance, just loves to turn a catchy phrase. Doubtless he found this knack helpful in the social perestroika of his diplomatic days. As American minister to Greece under President Taft, Moses is reputed to have pulled some smooth ones. Also, as editor of the Concord Evening Monitor, he was known throughout his state for the brilliancy and sparkle of his journalistic gems.

But it is in politics, Moses believes, that the opportunity for reaping rich rewards from a well-turned line is greatest. A word or phrase that will catch popular fancy, he submits, will do more to win a campaign or put across a candidate than all the logic and argument and hard indignation that can be assembled. Willing to do his part as a word wizard to lead the republican party out of the wilderness of the coming campaign, Moses recommends that party managers keep the spotlight focused constantly on "The Cabin, Calm, Courteous, Christian Character" of Calvin Coolidge.

Whether the democrat will decline to fight an alternative battle with the G. O. P. and will answer the republican challenge to "Keep Cool With Coolidge" by retorting: "Why put the country in Cold Storage?"

Harriet Stanton Blatch, daughter of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, pioneer suffragist, suggests that women who find difficulty in adjusting themselves to the policies and principles of the two old parties, which still function chiefly from the masculine viewpoint, seize the opportunity to get on the ground floor in the La Follette party.

"To make the party truly progressive, in its recognition of equal suffrage as well as in its attitude toward other fundamentals, she said, second place on the ticket might properly be filled by a woman."

Jane Addams as a vice presidential candidate who would draw thousands of women's votes to the La Follette party.

"We women should forget every idea of a woman's party," says Mrs. Blatch. "The plan has gone by for women to talk about getting things for women. That is played out. We must work for the things that are good for all humanity, not just for women alone."

Vermonters in Washington at a "Maple Sugar Party" thrown by Senator Porter Dale, whooped things up for Cal Coolidge, Plymouth (Vt.) boy, as a candidate for president. A "sawed" time was had by all.

HALF HOLIDAY

In accordance with their annual custom the E. A. Wilson Co. has arranged to give its employees a week's half holiday during the summer months, closing the downtown office at 12.30 every Thursday afternoon and their yards and warehouses every Saturday at 12 o'clock.

THE SPELLBINDER

It is suggested that where a non-partisan law and that he neither received nor accepted any compensation whatever, directly or indirectly, for any service rendered or to be rendered to any person either by himself or another in relation to any proceeding, contract, claim, controversy, charge, accusation, arrest, or other matter or thing."

In spite of the overwhelming testimony in support of this finding, Senator Sterling, a republican, dissented and promised to submit a minority report.

Issues Annoying to G. O. P.

There are a few things that are annoying to the republican leaders a great deal of perplexity at the present time. One of these is the proposed party under the leadership of Senator La Follette coming into the field, and the other the Ku Klux Klan issue. As to whether La Follette will run as an independent candidate or at the head of a third party, will be decided at a convention to be held on July 1 or after the democratic convention shall have concluded its work. The La Follette leaders have decided on this program and are ignoring the plans of the more radical element in their group to hold the convention as called on June 17 after the close of the republican convention.

Senator La Follette spurns Balch's support so that it is not expected that he will form any alliance with the former-labor group of which Senator Capper has been a conspicuous leader. At the present time, the La Follette men as well as the senator himself, are more inclined to favor his running directly as an independent candidate for president. He would thus earn the support of the elements which would constitute a third party if one were organized, and he would be free from the handicap of having a ticket cluttered up with candidates for senator and various other offices.

The Klan Issue. The other issue in regard to the Ku Klux Klan, is quite annoying to the republican leaders. The reason for the Klan victory in the republican primaries in Indiana has been taken as a challenge to real Americanism. If the republican party passes it over in silence, that course will be regarded as indication of collusion with the Klan or continuance at its political activity in opposition to certain classes of citizens on account of race or religion.

On the other hand, the democratic party would be equally embarrassed if it remained silent in regard to the Klan, for the reason that the democratic campaign in Texas can help to nominate presidential candidates on a straight Klan or anti-Klan issue. For this reason, it is predicted that the democratic platform will contain a plank condemning the activities of the Klan and its organizations. The fact that Senator Underwood has come out strongly against the Klan and in favor of placing the issue in the democratic platform, has increased his strength as a candidate quite considerably during the past two months.

The Volstead Law. As to the agitation for a change in the Volstead law, it is not likely that the republicans will touch the matter beyond an appeal for strict enforcement of the 18th amendment. It is likely, however, that the democrats will make an appeal for modification of the more stringent provisions of the Volstead act, not for the overthrow of prohibition, but for its better enforcement and in order to overcome much of the opposition now directed against the law. The recent packing of quite a number of the leading clubs and cabaret restaurants in New York, will stir up much opposition in that state against the objectionable features of the Volstead act and will bring added support to the so-called wet candidates.

M. E. CONFERENCE

Decision on Church's War Attitude Expected at Today's Session

SPRINGFIELD, May 17.—Whether the Methodist church is to go on record as refusing to take part in any war or as willing to support wars in self-defense or the defense of humanity, will probably be decided at today's session of the Methodist Episcopal general conference. Major and minority reports of the standing committee on the state of the church were scheduled to be brought before the house soon after the opening of the meeting.

The other outstanding event of the day, according to prediction, may be an attempt by certain delegates to have reconsidered the action of the conference yesterday in tabling a substitute to a committee report on the number of bishops to hold office the coming quadrennium. The substitute would have instructed the episcopacy committee to leave unaltered five existing vacancies on the board of bishops.

STUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Six-year-old Albert Brown of 386 Gorham street, was injured last yesterday afternoon when struck by an automobile operated by Peter C. Kearney of 18 Savanna street, in Gorham street, near his home. He was taken to St. John's hospital for treatment.

OUTDOOR RELIEF

The usual fortnightly expenditure for outdoor relief by the charity department, amounting to $100 this time, was $226.50 passed through the city clerk's office this morning and will be available on May 20.

SALE OF COTTAGES

The sale of two cottages in Pelham Centre, N. H., for a sum approximating $2,000, is reported today through the office of E. Gaston Campbell, real estate dealer. The property is located in the town of Pelham, and was sold for Deidia Lathrop to Wilfred J. Danile, who plans to alter and renovate the cottages.

WILL CONTINUE COLLECTIONS

Owing to the Great Scout Rally and "Boy's Day" coming today the Girl Reserves of the Y.M.C.A. will also make collections for this day next week. The money collected this day goes for equipment for their splendid permanent camp on Long Mountain for pond, which will be open from July 1st to Sept. 1st.

STAGE SET FOR BIGGEST SCANDAL YET AT WASHINGTON

"Old Guard" Tries to Stop Investigation But Democrats and Progressives Order it Ahead and Hire Heney as Counsel to Conduct Probe

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The biggest scandal of all is just about to be uncovered by the Washington investigators now.

The prohibition scandal. The investigation isn't into the merits of the law, concerning which, of course, opinions differ. The inquiry is to be into the fashion of its enforcement, or non-enforcement.

Dry generally admit corruption in the law's administration. But they say the main want an investigation, not to end corruption, but to get the law changed. So most of them have fought investigation tooth and nail. A few, however, like Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, have clamored for publicity as loudly as any wet.

The wets have fought hard for an inquiry but they're a minority in the present congress. Prohibition cranked out incidentally in various investigations but it wasn't their main theme. The subject wasn't thoroughly ventilated. It's unlikely it would have been, but for an accident.

Some time ago Senator Couzens began asking questions about the treasury. They related to taxes. But prohibition enforcement is part of the treasury's job. Couzens is a wet. The

"old guard" and the dries wanted neither of these subjects stirred up. Couzens was provided with an investigation committee, but a committee guard against not to investigate. He tried to go ahead by himself for a while. Then he saw it was no use, with his fellow-committeemen hampering him. So he hired a lawyer, Francis J. Heney, famed muckraker, to help him.

This meant publicity, despite all the "old guard" and the dries could do. They flung it had got to be stopped. Senator Watson moved the investigation committee's discharge. That was too raw. The senate hadn't the nerve to back him up. Then, according to Senator Norris, "Secretary Mellon and President Coolidge went crazy." Urged by Mellon, the president sent to the senate his celebrated message saying Couzens had no right to hire a private lawyer, sending the senators for their investigations and virtually ordering them to "put it out."

Just then Couzens told Mr. Delany matters a bit. But finally the time for a show-down came. The senate had to decide whether to go ahead or quit. If it had been a thump of the work and dries, the dries would have won. But instead it proved to be a lineup between the pro-investigation element and the "old guard." The pro-investi-

REAL ESTATE SALES

Thos. D. Elliott

Thos. D. Elliott, real estate and insurance, reports the following sales negotiated during the past week:

Final papers have been passed in the sale of Rixley-Hartford mill No. 3, in the local Bigelow-terrace plant. LIMITEDS OF 1863 AND 1924

The diminutive William Crooks, first locomotive ever run on the Great Northern Railway, has come back into its own again. Under its own steam, it will set out from Chicago, May 16, for the Pacific Northwest, pulling an antiquated combination coach and old No. 9, the original Pullman sleeping car. A crew of veteran railroaders, dressed in the uniforms of 1863, will man the toy-like train. And along with it will travel one of the Great Northern's ten new Oriental Limited trains. The caravan will reach Seattle May 27.

MASS. LEGION OFFICIAL ATTACKS BONUS VETO

BOSTON, May 17.—Leo M. Harlow, acting commander of the department of Massachusetts, the American Legion, on the veto by President Coolidge of the adjusted compensation bill, issued a lengthy statement today in which he said:

"The American Legion and the Veterans of Massachusetts generally are aggrieved by the veto message of President Coolidge.

"The organized veterans of the state and the commonwealth itself stand irrevocably committed to the principle of adjusted compensation.

"In 1919 with the approval of Gov. Calvin Coolidge, Massachusetts paid a gratuity to her sons and daughters who served the nation in time of war and in so doing recognized the inadequacy of their federal compensation. This action was emphasized when the legislature in 1922 and again in 1923 unanimously memorialized the congress for the passage of the adjusted compensation bill.

"We are assured that Senators Lodge and Walsh and a majority of the Massachusetts representatives in congress recognize the justice of the adjusted compensation principle and will vote to pass a measure embracing the principle over any presidential veto.

"The department of Massachusetts, the American Legion, still believes that the adjusted compensation measure is inevitable legislation, despite the position of the president, who stands with the organized forces of finance and industry who have carried on a massive propaganda against this principle and against the demand of a preponderant majority of those who served their country in time of war."

develop himself physically, mentally, and morally. The boy who develops his body by participating in clean sport, not only helps himself physically, but also morally, because he has gained a knowledge of true sportsmanship and has practiced it. The healthy boy is an asset to a community, while one who is physically weak is a liability. Therefore the responsibility is on every boy to develop an asset. The boy who feels his responsibility of developing a strong body for himself will take advantage of all the opportunities offered to him in the physical work in school and will enter into all school sports. Health must come first if a boy is to do his best work. The large number of Americans physically deficient in the draft examinations during the World War shows the responsibility of the boy of today about this line.

"The boy who takes advantage of all the means of education offered to him by his city, of not obtaining an education which will be advantageous to himself through having developed his mentally and so furthered his own progress and financial advancement in the world, but is also preparing himself so that he will be worthy of attaining and holding any honors his fellow citizens may confer on him, even unto the presidency of the United States. The success of a democracy depends upon the intelligence of its citizens, for the average voter. For this reason, the boy must be intelligent not only for selfish reasons, but also so as to become a good business man. The man who builds up a good business which is a help to his country depends. This is also true in science, art, and commerce.

"The boy who realizes his responsibility will do all in his power to exert the highest moral influence. He will develop within himself, and will always stand for the highest virtues of mankind, especially honesty, truthfulness and justice. No country is justly proud unless its population is composed of men possessed with the right kind of moral ideas. No country can exist unless its citizens obey all the laws. Any country populated by boys and men without moral responsibility would soon become a menace, as stealing would be prevalent, and this would be followed by murder and other crimes."

Some men seem to stay at home when they don't need a shave.

Detailed Description of House Plan Illustrated On Page 14

This six-room home, of Dutch Colonial adaptation, is a story and one-half type. The first story walls are of brick on masonry foundation, while wood frame is used for the second story. Brick is used for the first story, while wood siding covers the public ends and dormer windows. The roof is shingled.

The house can be placed on a lot from 55 to 60 feet in width. If the garage is omitted, it will be on a 100 foot lot.

This is a centre hall type of home. It provides six good rooms, three of which are sleeping rooms, a full basement and a garage.

The porch opens directly from the living room, thus increasing the living space. This porch may be glazed or screened, as preferred. The fireplace, centrally located in the living room, makes a pleasing feature on the inside, as well as the outside of the house.

The entrance porch opens into a recess or loggia which may very well be converted into a vestibule for regions of excessive cold.

The kitchen is spacious, well lighted, with a modern equipment of fixtures, arranged to save extra steps in the day's work.

The definite connection to a garage through an entry will appeal to many people. But this feature may be omitted if desired without affecting the architectural balance of the house.

If the exterior of the house is finished with red brick laid in white mortar joints, main roof shingles of a bright green, the woodwork painted white and the outside blinds a turquoise blue, the total effect will be both decorative and individual—provided the proper shades of color are used.

COLD KEEPS PRESIDENT COOLIDGE IN ROOM

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Because of a slight cold, President Coolidge cancelled his engagements for today and remained away from his office.

It was said at the White House that he was not confined to bed but had decided to spend the day in his room on the advice of his physicians.

Mr. Coolidge contracted a cold several days ago, and his recovery has been retarded by an unusual succession of May showers which have kept the capital enveloped in dampness almost continuously.

Yesterday he consulted a throat specialist to whom he has made periodic visits since he entered the White House. At the executive offices he was said to be in good health, but that as a precaution, it had been decided to keep the president away from his desk at least during the morning hours when callers are usually received. It is possible he may go to his office this afternoon, at least to some correspondence.

Brig. Gen. Charles E. Sawyer, White House physician, after a call at the White House said: "The president is indisposed with a cold and it is deemed advisable that he remain in his room and keep quiet until he can return to his duties without liability."

"SUBORDINATION OF WOMAN TO MAN"

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 17.—(By the Associated Press).—"The subordination of woman to man," as a scriptural principle of the Presbyterian church in the United States, again is a living issue before the general assembly of the church, now in its 64th session here. A year ago, this question was settled in favor of women by action of the assembly in admitting them to executive committees of the assembly. The issue has been giving trouble since then, according to reports filed by several Presbyteries, and today the assembly has before it at least ten overtures from various sections of the country, some demanding that women be excluded from the committees and one protesting any change in the 1923 action.

The Pan-American union is supported by quotas contributed by each country, based upon the population.

Boy Mayor is Likely Chap

of the morning. But Mayor Healey wasn't fooled any.

"If it was always like this I would be an easy job," he said. "But I know that it isn't—there's much to be done here."

Is Fourteen Years Old
The boy mayor was nattily attired in a well-fitting blue suit with knee breeches, wore black shoes and stockings, a blue and white-striped shirt with soft collar and tie that blended into the scheme to perfection. His hair was carefully brushed, his nails were polished and he looked every bit of a real American boy.

He was accompanied to the hall this morning by Miss M. Alice Corcoran, his teacher at Greenbush school, who was proud of her 14-year-old pupil who graduated last month. Rev. Percy E. Thomas of the boys' work committee also accompanied him.

At noon, sharp to the dot, the boy mayor stepped from his office to the waiting city auto driven by Paul Langan, the mayor's chauffeur, and was conveyed to the city hall for his first dinner, causing him to feel like a king in his own right. He was accompanied by his parents and good-natured crowd of the part of his playmates in the neighborhood. He was seated at a table with a white cloth and a blue and white-striped shirt with soft collar and tie that blended into the scheme to perfection. His hair was carefully brushed, his nails were polished and he looked every bit of a real American boy.

After dinner the mayor's car called for him to bring him again in city hall where he reviewed the parade.

The boy mayor is quite proud and appreciative of his elevation to his temporary position, and is equally proud of the position which he holds, which the city's real mayor, John J. Donovan, handed to his temporary underling. Despite his excitement and pleasure upon learning of his being chosen as the chief executive of the city for a day, he stuck quite closely to his usual routine, going to bed around 10 o'clock last night and rising promptly at 7:15 this morning.

Receives Many Calls
At 10 o'clock he was seated comfortably in the mayor's chair and Mayor Donovan, after making sure he was all right, retired to the reception room to sign graduation diplomas for pupils of the Greenbush school.

Curiously enough the boy mayor's was among them.

City Solicitor Reynolds, Superintendent Molloy, City Auditor Martin, Purchasing Agent Donnelly, and Lieut. Connors of the police department were among the early ones to shake hands with the boy mayor and wish him a successful administration. In addition there was one other, the usual number of newspapermen.

The boy mayor gave them all a brief personal audience and was quite equal to the occasion all the time. It was noticed that he always reflected for a hesitant second before he spoke and then spoke with a clearness and finality that left no doubt as to his meaning.

Talks on City Affairs
The reporters all had a few posers for the mayor and he didn't flinch on a question, showing a surprising grasp of municipal affairs that would never be expected in the average 14-year-old schoolboy. On the subject of a raise in wages for the police and firemen he doesn't think the city can afford it just now unless they get that surplus poll tax money back from the state. He had read of the proposed refund in a morning paper which lay on his desk.

"What do you think of the proposal before the school committee now that more than 1000 residents should be engaged as school teachers?" he was asked.

"I wouldn't be that strict. I should say the Lowell folks should be given first chance," he answered quickly.

"What do you think of this proposal to motorize the fire department? You know about that?"

"Yes, I've been told that soon there will be no more horses in the fire department."

"What do you think of that?" Here the boy in the mayor's asserted himself. He frowned for a minute and then said slowly: "I suppose it's for the best, but somehow I hate to see the horses go. I just love horses."

Not New to Politics
"I understand this isn't your first experience in politics," said a reporter for The Sun. "You are president of your class at Greenbush grammar are you not?"

"Yes, I'm going to high school next year."

"Did you have any fun running against you for class president?"

"One fellow but I beat him. I think the vote was 57 to 11."

"You're a bit of a politician then aren't you?"

"I don't know. That was easy. I had many friends."

"Have you any idea of getting in politics here by?"

"I've enjoyed this job pretty well, but I really got tired of it. So far I'm not too sure to say positive."

"What do you think of that?"

"I don't know. That was easy. I had many friends."

Locks and Canals Will Assist in Improving Suffolk Street

Long List of Condemned Tenement Properties to be Removed — Owners Will Construct Recreation Park for Children if City Will Not Improve Street—Widening of Thoroughfare Would Make Better Route From Merrimack Street to Railroad Station

BUILDINGS IN SUFFOLK STREET TO BE RAZED

Locks and Canals proprietors are prepared with ample financial resources to go more than half way with the municipal government of Lowell in a comprehensive project involving the widening of a respectable long section of an ancient thoroughfare in the mercantile heart of the city.

The sole object in view is the proprietor's ambition to improve an almost forgotten main transportation artery—Suffolk street—leading directly from conveniently accessible point on Merrimack street just beyond city hall and directly to Middlesex street and the central freight and passenger transfer territories.

The attention of Chairman Clarence M. Wood of the city park commission and the Lowell planning board has been called to the proposition informally advanced by the Locks and Canals proprietors through the executive offices of Arthur T. Safford, who, today, explained in detail some of the proprietors' plans that are by no means in the formulative period at the present time.

The project includes a generous offer to the citizens of Lowell of a gift of land suitable for either a street-widening initiative, or a small public parkway along the Suffolk street bank of the canalway. The Locks and Canals proprietors strongly favor the parkway project, believing it would transform the Suffolk street thoroughfare into a more desirable and safe thoroughfare, and renovate a large section of one of Lowell's oldest and most fertile mill tenement districts.

The thoroughfare improvement problem is now engaging the earnest attention of the proprietors and promises to come up for formal consideration before the planning board in official form very soon, The Sun was told today.

In the opinion of leading citizens and municipal authorities, as well as Locks and Canals proprietors, ancient Suffolk street, the time-worn, badly dilapidated and poorly paved relic of former well-constructed mill tenement housing territory has become a public eyesore as well as a menace in other directions.

In the process of the Suffolk street renovation contemplated, numerous bygone tenement structures of various descriptions, now battered, weathered and in a shambles condition throughout, are to be torn down and removed by Locks and Canals proprietors. It is a public necessity in a way, and so regarded by all who have learned of the proprietors' plans in perspective.

Portions of the irregular-shaped, outworn tenements that were erected nearly 100 years ago when Lowell was an infant in textile rompers, are falling apart slowly—crumbling on weakened foundations and unsafe as well as wholly undesirable for further tenancy.

Orders were issued as early as last January for all tenants to move. Most of them have departed, but one or two small families still cling to the interior of one crumbling relic of former days.

No New Buildings

That the Locks and Canals proprietors have no intention of erecting any new buildings on the site of the blacksmith shop now removed and the sites of the remaining buildings which will disappear in the near future, was admitted today by Mr. Safford in an interview relative to the proprietors' motives in ordering out tenants and then leveling the old blacksmith shop.

Mr. Safford said, in part: "The proprietors contemplate no building construction campaign on the land adjoining the canal from the Broadway-Suffolk street corner toward Fletcher street after the buildings abutting the canals are removed. The land to be cleared is not to be used in any way to assist for extending the Locks and Canals service, neither is it for sale."

"While we have no approved plans of any kind for the use of the land to be made vacant, the proprietors have considered suggestions as to its ultimate use in a public way. Consideration has been made of propositions calling for use of the tenement property land in a suggested widening of Suffolk street. We have also considered the possibilities of a small recreation park for the use of residents in the Suffolk street neighborhood."

Mr. Safford stated that he had informally called the Lowell planning board's attention to the proprietors' contemplated renovations and suggestions about Suffolk street highway betterments that might follow the city's tenement land, providing the thoroughfare would be widened and modernized and made a better transportation way.

Relieve Traffic Congestion

The Locks and Canals executive is a firm believer in Suffolk street—from Merrimack street to Fletcher street and Middlesex street—as one most desirable thoroughfare in Lowell that should be used more than it is today by general transportation interests, particularly that transportation of the motor truck family that piles back and forth from the Middlesex street railroad station and freight houses to the center of Lowell and all out-branching business districts.

Mr. Safford firmly believes that the greater usage of Suffolk street would relieve much of the present traffic congestion in other sections of Lowell's street transportation system, providing the ancient highway were properly widened as suggested by Locks and Canals proprietors along the route where the battered tenement houses are soon to disappear.

Mr. Safford stated today that the corporation he represents is prepared to demolish and remove the tenement house properties and level the area in the street-widening program, if it is to come. The proprietors feel that they are giving something in an excellent cause and there is no desire to place any great financial burdens whatever upon the city of Lowell if the street-widening plan should be approved and carried out with the city's approval and co-operation.

Chairman Clarence Wood of the park commission said that the Suffolk street widening plan and improvements, had not been brought to the attention of city government officials in any formal way and that no members of the commission had discussed the matter except in an informal way.

Lowell Planning Board

The Lowell planning board has not yet been called upon officially to study any plans for the widening of Suffolk street, Mr. Wood said today. The Locks and Canals proprietors had called board members' attention to the situation in the Suffolk street neighborhood, Mr. Wood continued, but no

REMARKABLE RECOVERY OF MRS. SPINK

Gives Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Full Credit

Minnesota Junction, Wis.—"I was under treatment, but nothing seemed to help me, and I was run-down and so weak that I had to remain in bed much of the time and was like an invalid. I had pains in my abdomen and in the female organs, and my stomach bothered me. My husband saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised, thought it must be good, and brought it home to me and advised me to try it. After taking one bottle I was able to eat, and after six bottles I was doing my own work, which I hadn't been able to do for years. I have a new baby who is doing nicely, and I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and feeling better than I have for four years. The medicine is surely wonderful and a good thing to have in the house."—Mrs. GEORGE SPINK, Minnesota Junction, Wisconsin.

A country-wide canvass of purchasers of the Compound reports 98 per cent. benefited.

Locks and Canals Will Assist In Improving Suffolk St.

demand was made for a board of local discussion.

As a result of a call from Mr. Sanford, members of the planning board, about a week ago, paid an informal visit to the territory under consideration for improvements. This survey was only a casual one, the visit being in no sense an action of official character, Chairman Weed declared.

Since that informal survey of the old tenement house surroundings on the banks of the canal, under the guidance of Locks and Canals proprietors, the planning board has not considered the matter because no program or request for a formal hearing has been filed, if it is the intention of the Locks and Canals proprietors to file one. The Suffolk street improvement in perspective, therefore, remain for the present without executive consideration of any kind.

The improvements proposed by Locks and Canals proprietors on the Suffolk thoroughfare would, in the estimation of many leading citizens and students of local motor transportation problems, be welcomed by a majority of present traffic-handlers, local and transient, who would, it is confidently believed, appreciate the street widening intended to relieve to a large extent present congestions in the movement from all directions of heavy traffic through Lowell.

The Tenement Houses

The numbers of the tenement structures on Suffolk street that are to be cleared away later on when Locks and Canals decides what to do with the property along the canal to be made vacant run from 145 to 197. There are old-fashioned three-deckers, with flimsy, weather-damaged back piazzas in the rear overhanging the mill waters. There are also two-story "long tenements," with rattling cottage houses in between the larger properties. All show evidence of great age, particularly the portions that jut out to the edge of the canal.

Lesser of the houses now condemned to destruction and valuations assessed by the city of Lowell, are as follows:

145-146 Suffolk street—Apostolas Baskara; four tenement house, $2800.

161-179 Suffolk street—H. M. Connell; four tenement and one single house, $3000.

180-181 Suffolk street—Anastasia Klafas; house and store, $1000.

197 Suffolk street—Julius Richards; junk and blacksmith shop, $450. (This building has just been demolished and removed by Locks and Canals proprietors.)

LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Speakers Discuss League and Permanent Court of International Justice

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—The League of Nations and the permanent court of international justice were discussed today by speakers before the annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Asserting that several recent instances had illustrated the value of the permanent court of international justice, Stanley O. Hudson, Beams professor of international law at Harvard, said the court served the world as an agency for the promotion of peace. "If it may not be hailed as a substitute for war," he declared, "it can at least be supported as a hope for the future of peace."

Miss Ruth Morgan of the National League of Women Voters, New York, said the establishment of a world court and the adherence thereto would be a real step towards the elimination of war. "The principle of the legal decision and arbitration of international disputes," she declared, "will not be established without high endeavor and great sacrifice, but so soon as we face the fact that we are choosing between inevitable war and the creation of effective machinery for the settlement of difficulties, we shall be preparing the national mind morally and spiritually to use that machine in the day of danger."

Arthur Bullard, New York, editor of Our World, said the settlement of the Meuse and Upper Silesia frontier questions and gained many friends in Europe for the League of Nations.

"The refusal of the United States to join the league was a serious setback to its friends in Europe and greatly heartened its enemies," said Mr. Bullard.

Declaring that the presence of many non-European nations in the League of Nations did not make it a world association, Philip Marshall Brown of Princeton university, said that in actual practice the league had proved to be primarily a European concern and its interests in the main of a political character.

"The indissoluble union of the covenant of the league with the treaty of Versailles was a lamentable mistake," said Dr. Brown. "The league was cursed from its inception by this relationship."

"The United States was more than justified in its refusal to ratify the treaty of Versailles, and in its signing of a separate treaty, with Germany which affords a just basis for a durable peace between the two nations."

"The greatest service that the United States can render to the cause of human brotherhood and the world peace is to maintain its traditional foreign policy. We cannot afford to be implicated in the decisions of purely political questions in Europe."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

THE TWINS VISIT MR. GULLIVER

"I SOON DISCOVERED THAT I WAS TIED DOWN"

We have seen so many people in Once-Upon-a-Time Land that there are not many left to visit," said Mister Muggs as he stopped his magic automobile beside the place where the Twins were playing.

"Where are we going today?" cried Nick as he and Nancy climbed in, and the fairyman shut the door and started the Hula-hula.

"How would you like to go and call on Mister Gulliver?" asked Mister Muggs. "Like Alice in Wonderland, and Slubad, he is a good story teller, and can tell you all sorts of interesting things that happened to him."

"Hooray! That will be fine!" cried Nick. "Let's hurry."

So away they whizzed over the Fairyland Road till they came to Once-Upon-a-Time Land, and at last reached the house of L. Gulliver, Esq.

"I rather thought you'd be along to see me," said Mister Gulliver kindly after he had shaken hands all around and told one of his men to look after the car. "You have been to see so many of my neighbors. Come and sit down and I'll give you a drink of fruit juice that I learned to make from the Lilliputians."

"Who are they?" asked Nancy. "They are the people upon whose shores I landed the first time I was shipwrecked," said Mister Gulliver. "I'll tell you about them."

"When I swam to shore in this strange land, I was tired out, so I lay down on the grass to sleep."

"How long I slept I do not know, but when I awakened, I couldn't move."

"I thought at first that it was just stiffness from being in the water, but I soon discovered that I was tied down to tiny stakes by thousands of little cords."

"Next, little creatures began to crawl all over me and I soon saw that they were people, but they were only six inches high."

"Whenever I moved they shot arrows at me no larger than pins, but when I was quiet they were kind and let me alone."

"After while they cut the cords that held my head and brought me food. A hundred tiny people with a hundred tiny baskets fed me. I ate three loaves of lamb (no bigger than peas) at one mouthful, and three tiny loaves of bread and three of their tiny hams I swallowed without as much as chewing. They thought I never would get filled, I know."

"Everything that I did seemed to astonish them."

"Then they gave me something to drink which put me to sleep."

"When I awoke, fifteen hundred of their horses carried me to the king's palace."

"The king ordered nine hundred towns to feed me, three hundred tailors to make me a suit of clothes, and it took six hundred of their heds to make a bed for me."

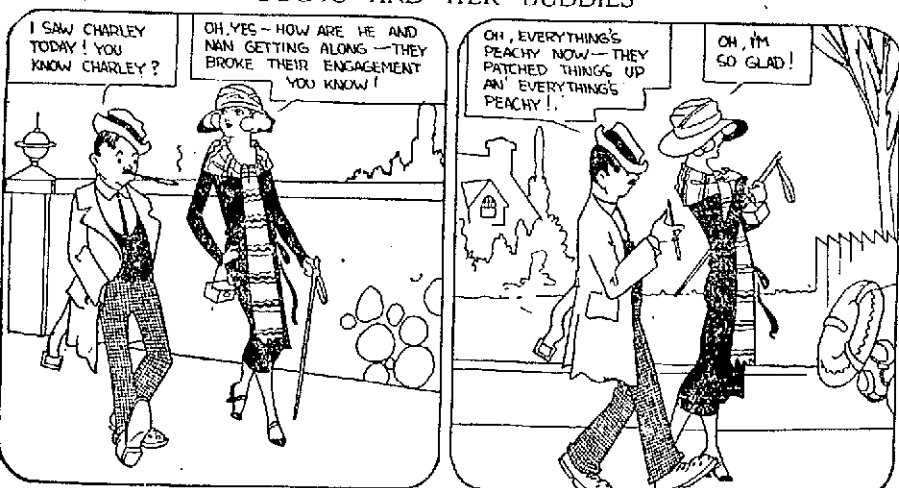

"One day they had a parade of a hundred thousand men and ten thousand horses I stood up and my legs made a great archway under which they passed."

"Is that all?" asked Nick. "Not quite," said Mister Gulliver. "They went to war with their enemies, the Blefuscans, over the right way to open an eye. I went out into the ocean and picked up all the enemy ships for them, so they won."

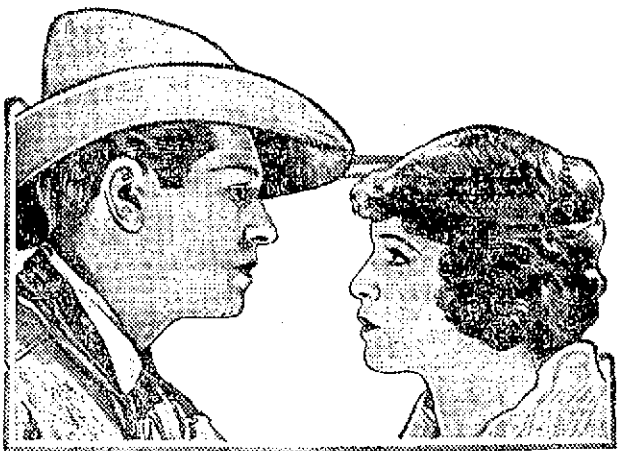

"After that the king and I had a quarrel and I had to leave the Land of the Lilliputians."

Good Bill at The Strand Theatre

FEATURE AT STRAND FOUR DAYS STARTING SUNDAY

"When a Man's a Man," one of the most successful melodramatic offerings that First National has given the screen in seasons, will be the headliner on The Strand offering for the first four days of the week, starting Sunday. It's a story of the west and east, and has all of the phases of real life that go in the making of a most acceptable picture story. The cast includes some of the screen's prime favorites. For the second feature, "Second Youth," a great comedy drama, will be shown, and in addition there will be a good comedy and week-by-week, as well as music on The Strand organ. No better program can be had for the prices in all New England.

Harold Bell Wright is responsible for "When a Man's a Man." He is one of the most popular authors of this kind of story of the recent day, and when it was recently announced that his stories were to be adapted to the screen the fans all over the country looked forward with pleasurable anticipation. This offering is a gripping story of the great Arizona ranch country and is said by those who have had the pleasure of already seeing it to be one of the outstanding features of the year. John Powers and Marcia de la Motte, as well as Robert Frazer and others well known to the screen, are engaged in its presentation. The story deals with the determination of a Cleveland "son of a rich man" who goes west to make a man of himself after having been spurned by the girl he would make his wife. The young man had riches, but little or no initiative. He was more destructively than constructively, and it was a blow to him when one day he learned that the girl of his heart had turned him down. He slipped out quietly from his home city and sought adventure and an opportunity to make a man of himself in the Arizona ranch district. He starts in as a cowpuncher, and after overcoming all of the obstacles that confront him, comes out with flying colors. Before he accomplishes all of this, however, he is put to the test. You see him mould into a regular man with character and strength, and then he goes back to claim his prize, and of course, is accepted.

The story of "Second Youth" concerns a very modern young lady who is annoyed by the freedom allowed the masculine sex in the matter of flirting. She objects to a condition which allows a man to play around with salacious, suggestive, ladies of the ensemble and others without arousing adverse comment, but which condemns a woman for the self-same thing. She determines to rebel and begins to do a little flirting herself, picking out a supercilious salesman because she believes him harmless. He is not as harmless as he looks, however, and the young lady finds this fact out sooner than she thinks. Alfred Lunt and Mimi Palmer are seen in the stellar roles, and a capable cast assists. You'll laugh at the story.

On the Bill at B. F. Keith's Next Week

HENRIETTA LANE AT B. F. KEITH'S NEXT WEEK

Marguerita Padula will head the bill at the B. F. Keith theatre on Sunday, giving her wonderfully fascinating going. There are few better entertainers before the public today. Will and Eva Holmes will be on the list, with songs and some lively patter, and Will Morris will demonstrate just how good a pantomime comedian can be. Three new acts will appear for the day. Johnson and Cole, in songs and patter; Murphy and Mordant, in instrumental numbers; and Wallace and Piles, in comedy attachments, will be the newcomers.

The Quixy Four, positively the simplest singing quartet on the vaudeville stage, will head the coming week's bill at this theatre. The members of the quartet are not only good singers, but they have the snap of the very best comedians. The name Quixy is a coined word, coined by the members of the quartet.

"Two Black Lots" are George Morton and Harry Gordon. They are blackface comedy singers, with a new line of patter. The men have only recently appeared at the Keith theatre in New York, where they scored an exceptional hit.

Tony Hunt and Corinne Francis are about as near to being born entertainers as the vaudeville stage possesses. Tony is one of the four famous Huntings and Corinne has been sinking and tripping since she was a tiny lassie. "The Photo-traffer" is their latest tabloid comedy, with singing and dancing attachments.

Howard Mack and Henrietta Lane conduct a nut factory—on the stage. It is quite generally admitted that the twins are crazy but very good. So, take a squirt at the pair, for they will manufacture some of the neatest, or crazy, quite things one will often run across on the stage.

Martinet and his crew are unusual. It is so very unusual that it helps out this important jester in his very difficult work. For novelty you won't find anything to beat Martinet.

Edith and Violet Welch are harmony singers. However, they tend to their work personalities which are crisp and always pleasant, and their appearances are all to the good.

The week's picture will be "Glamorous Vixen," a screen story of modern life galloping along at break-neck speed. The cast which appears in this picture includes Marjorie Daw, Baby Dorothy Brock, Hedda Hopper and Ward Crane.

At the Rialto Next Week

"HOODMAN BLIND" AT THE RIALTO

What is the strongest of the emotions? Love? Hate? Neither. It is jealousy. More desperate actions have been perpetrated at the frenzied direction of the green-eyed monster than can be attributed to any one other element of human nature. Jealousy is a concoction of the emotions—love, hate, envy, remorse—all of them!

One of the most famous stage plays in the history of the drama, "Hoodman Blind," ranks among the best illustrations of the strength of jealousy and its consequences. It has been made into a motion picture by William Fox and will receive its first local showing at the Rialto theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Because of jealousy, Mark Lezard contrives to have Jack Yuletta find a girl whom he believes to be his wife, in the arms of another man. Because of jealousy, Yuletta upbraids his wife and, despite her ignorance of the alleged infidelity, deserts her. This jealous mania is responsible for nearly wrecking the lives of three persons. It develops that the girl, whom Yuletta had seen in the arms of another, was a sister of his wife whom he had never seen. Which opens the way for another interesting question. Do you know your own wife?

The story is laid in America, most of the action taking place in the little town of Freeport, where all manner of artistic, provincial atmosphere is obtainable. As a play "Hoodman Blind" was a great success. There is

Then the Fruit Treatment—"Fruit-a-lives" Brought Complete Relief

It is sharply marvelous how successful the Fruit Treatment is in overcoming chronic troubles. Chronic constipation, dyspepsia and rheumatism. The juices of apples, oranges, lemons, pineapples, and combined with honey are made into small pills called "Fruit-a-lives" which have proven the marvels of the modern world for many diseases.

For instance, Mr. James A. Shatt, 50 Oakhill Ave., Watbury, Conn., says: "I recommend 'Fruit-a-lives' to anyone suffering from chronic constipation. Having suffered for ten years, and receiving little relief from specialists, I at last have been helped by your 'fruit-a-lives'."

GILLET PROMISES TO SUPPORT COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, May 17.—A pledge to support wholeheartedly the policies of President Coolidge if elected senator from Massachusetts is given by Speaker Gillett in a letter to R. M. Declining an invitation to address a luncheon meeting of the club today because of his inability to get away from Washington, Mr. Gillett referred to President Coolidge as the "greatest asset of the republican party."

VERY PRETTY AFFAIR NEEDED TO BE HELPED UP STAIRS

Senior Prom at High School Big Success—Coburn Hall Scene of Beauty

The first formal event in the 1924 commencement program at the high school was the senior prom held last evening in Coburn hall, attended by several hundred young people who found in it one of the most delightful social events given by undergraduates of the school.

The class social committee headed by Merrill Watkins had spent long hours in perfecting plans for the dance, including an elaborate decorative scheme which succeeded in wholly changing the somewhat austere presence of the lofty hall and transformed it into a bower of beauty. The hall windows were screened with lattice work in the colors of maroon and gold, chosen as the class colors and paper streamers of the same colors hung from the large ceiling chandeliers and side wall light brackets. A window box of tulips ran the whole length of the stage and the stage and woodwork was covered by gold foil. Splashes of gold relieved the bare walls on the side of the hall where there are no windows. It was one of the prettiest decorative schemes ever seen locally and the fact that Coburn hall does not easily lend itself to decoration made it even more effective and noticeable.

For the matrons and corner was set apart as a drawing room, with comfortable chairs, soft rug and table and bridge lamps creating a comfortable and restful atmosphere.

Special lighting effects were gained by the use of a spotlight which changed from rose to green to blue and small yellow noons over the two main exit doors. During the dance confetti and streamers of colored crepe paper rained down on the dancers and in another ten balloons added to the gaiety of the scene. It was a carnival spirit never before attained by a high school group and added immeasurably to the success and pleasure of the evening.

For the greater part of the evening general dancing was enjoyed, but during an intermission at 10 o'clock free were served and later on there was a pretty May pole dance with all the young people as participants.

The matrons were Miss Mary A. Webster, Miss Henry H. Harris, Miss Emma Sawyer and Miss Edith Erskine.

Assisting Merrill Watkins on the social committee and largely responsible for the splendid sociability which obtained were Ralph Butler, Edith Welch, Mathias Dellester, Morris Cohen, Douglas Flaherty, Gertrude Quirk, Edwin Hall, Sadie O'Neil and Marcela Lipchitz.

NEEDED TO BE HELPED UP STAIRS

Typical Anemic Condition Corrected by the Use of Tonic Treatment in Hartford

"The 'stair case test' is a term used in diagnosing anemia or bloodlessness because in this disease such slight exercise as walking upstairs causes breathlessness, palpitation of the heart and exhaustion.

The case of Mrs. Adell Courtney, of No. 83 Buckingham street, Hartford, Conn., had the characteristic symptoms. She says:

"The doctors said that I was in an anemic condition, that I had too little blood. I was as white as death and was so weak I could hardly walk. It was impossible for me to go up stairs without getting short of breath and finally I had to be helped. At times it beat so that it scared me. My nerves were shattered. I did not get much benefit from the medicines I took until finally I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and tried them.

"Soon I began to have some color and felt my strength returning. The heart fluttering ceased and soon I felt like a new person. My appetite returned and I ate well. My nerves got stronger and I gained in weight. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were just what I needed and I have great faith in them.

"Get a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at your druggist's today or write to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., enclosing sixty cents and a postcard will be sent you, postpaid. A little book, 'Build Up the Blood,' which explains the treatment, will be sent free on request—Adv.

Pawtucket A. A. Wins Over Belmonts in City. Twilight League Game

TARDIFF PITCHES P. A. A. TO VICTORY OVER RICARD'S BELMONT'S

Snappy, Seven-Inning Game Witnessed by Good Crowd on South Common—Belmonts Scoreless Until Last Inning—Final Score 4 to 2

The Pawtucket A. A. and Ricard's Belmonts provided a snappy seven-inning ball game for City League fans on the South common last evening. The P. A. A.'s annexing a 4-2 win in their first appearance of the season under league auspices.

"Chick" Tardiff, stellar right-hander, pitched the rubber for the winners and pitched a superb brand of ball. Tardiff had eight strikeouts to his credit and walked but one Belmont batter. In the last frame, he held the heavy-hitting Ricard men to two measly singles, one of them a double to left by Jimmie Pacey, captain of the high school team. But for a fatal lapse in the seventh, Tardiff would have emerged with a shut-out victory. He had everything.

For the Belmonts, Bob Lawless was on the mound, and while he was touched up for nine snags, he pitched a good game. Failure of his arm to hit brought defeat. Willard, Pacey and O'Neill being the only Belmonts able to solve the baffling offerings of the Pawtucket twirler.

The game got under way at 6:15 sharp with Orrie Allen umpiring behind the bat and "Buster" Curtin on the bases. The P. A. A. team was first at bat, and registered two runs. After two had struck out, Tardiff connected for a single down the third base line. It was a hard hit ball and Les Atkinson made a neat try. Twohys was fast, however, and beat the throw to first for a hit. Turcotte struck out, but Jim Scully wanted and went to first on a free ticket. "Pinky" Rikenhead then came through with a timely single to center and two runners crossed the plate. The hitting continued with Mayson sinking to left, but McDonald made it three out on a grounder to Lawless.

The first half of the Belmont inning was uneventful. Willard was safe on McDonald's error, but Atkinson, Lawler and Carr went out on grounders.

The Pawtucket added another in the second stanza. "Boyle" started it off by singling sharply to left. Tardiff died out to Willette, and Pacey exchanged a safety to right center. Snider O'Neill allowed the ball to get away from him, but Pacey backed him up in pretty fashion as Boyle crossed the plate. Meanwhile Pacey continued to third and was heading for home when the ball was relayed to Carr. Pacey retreated back toward third and was doubled out on the fly. Atkinson finally taking him out.

The Belmonts were now trailing by three runs and Tardiff was still going strong. His players gave him another lift in the sixth, when a fourth run was scored. Scully slugged a single into left and Rikenhead attempted a sacrifice. He laid down a neat bunt in the direction of third and beat the throw to first for a hit. Scully watered it off by singling sharply to left. Tardiff died out to Willette, and Pacey exchanged a safety to right center. Scully watered it off by singling sharply to left. Tardiff died out to Willette, and Pacey exchanged a safety to right center. Snider O'Neill allowed the ball to get away from him, but Pacey backed him up in pretty fashion as Boyle crossed the plate. Meanwhile Pacey continued to third and was heading for home when the ball was relayed to Carr. Pacey retreated back toward third and was doubled out on the fly. Atkinson finally taking him out.

The Belmonts were now trailing by three runs and Tardiff was still going strong. His players gave him another lift in the sixth, when a fourth run was scored. Scully slugged a single into left and Rikenhead attempted a sacrifice. He laid down a neat bunt in the direction of third and beat the throw to first for a hit. LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 17 (By the Associated Press).—The 10-year-old question of East-meets-West for decision on the historic Churchill Downs course today when 20 of the nation's crack three-year-olds face the barrier for the sixth renewal of the Kentucky derby.

East and West are divided into two camps with Harry E. Sinclair's Mad Play and Braceland's White Gold, chosen of the East, while Gold Gold, chosen of the West, is the favorite of the race. Beau Butler, owned by E. H. Bradley, and Harry Payne Whitney's Transmute, which finished second in the Preakness, are considered long-range contenders.

The race, with a total value of $60,000, will be over the derby route of a mile and a quarter. The prize to the winner will be $25,000 in addition to a gold plate worth $500, while $5000 will go to the second horse, $2500 to the third and $1000 to the fourth.

With prospects of a warm-day with plenty of sunshine, Matt Winn, general manager of the Kentucky Jockey club, predicted a record-breaking crowd of 75,000 to 100,000 persons will witness the race.

Wheat of Dodgers and Kelly of Giants Follow Hornsby in National League

Williams of Browns and Harris of Boston Trail Heilmann—Ruth Bals .293

CHICAGO, May 17 (By the Associated Press).—After dropping out of play a week because of a damaged thumb, Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis, 1923 batting champion of the National league, is back in the lead with .341.

The veteran, Zack Wheat of Brooklyn, is second with .311 and George Kelly, the Giants' first baseman, third, with .294.

Hornsby's collection of hits, besides five homers, includes five triples and five doubles. The figures are based on games including those of Wednesday.

Frank Frisch of the Giants, one of the best run-getters in the league, is leading the scorers with 21 tallies.

Traynor of the Pirates is sharing the base-stealing honors with Max Carey, a teammate, each having eight.

Other leading batters: Fournier, Brooklyn, .306; Grantham, Chicago, .312; Placich, Cincinnati, .312; Frisch, New York, .337; Bohne, Cincinnati, .324; Snyder, New York, .333; Grimes, Chicago, .325; Blades, St. Louis, .326; Tierney, Boston, .325.

Al Simmons of Athletics is Star at Bat

WASHINGTON TUBBS II

AL SIMMONS

BY HOLLY EVANS

What part does form play in the success of baseball's greatest batters?

In golf you must follow through with your swing if you would get distance to your drives. In the history of the ring, there was never a great puncher who delivered his blows when off his stride, backing away.

A few of the recent punchers of the fight game must not get power back of their blows. They are seriously handicapped.

Others need only to step in, not the power of the body back of the punch, and make a dynamic wallow in a blow that carries only a few inches.

Step into the ball has long been a baseball truth. To be a great hitter it has always been considered essential that the batter step into the ball as he starts his swing.

Pulling Away Bad Fault

Pulling away from the ball, thereby losing off balance and losing much of the body power, has long been considered one of the worst of batting faults.

The loss of foot in the water bucket, has long been a baseball phrase used in describing the batter who pulls away from the plate with his front foot. In fact, it is not work in the water bucket that in the old days resided on the bench.

It is possible for a batsman to achieve greatness in baseball with a style that is directly contrary to the theories of the game.

Al Simmons, Connie Mack's rookie outfielder, is the player we have in mind, in making the above statement.

Form Means Nothing

Simmons casts batting form to the winds, pulls on nearly every ball pitched, set in the opening weeks of play, his batting punch has featured the showing of the Athletics. Opposing pitchers hardly know how to figure him.

Philadelphia fans know him as "Pod-in-the-bucket" Simmons, yet he is their hero, because he can hit. The fan can forgive style if he gets action. Simmons has already supplied plenty of it.

The rookie outfielder is a sturdy youngster, who evidently carries great strength in his arms and shoulders. While he does pull on every ball pitched, his fault is not nearly so grievous as painted.

Simmons Uses Long Bat

Simmons uses an extra long bat. I don't believe I ever saw a big league player use a longer one. He stands close to the plate. Consequently, when he pulls away, he is not nearly so far from the plate as his actions would make it seem.

His habit of pulling away, plus the fact that he uses a long bat and hugs the plate, often brings him into perfect position to take a cut at the ball.

There is no poetry of motion to Simmons' batting style, but I am pretty well satisfied that he is going to be a great hitter, despite the criticism that is being handed his style at the plate.

And after all, it's the base hits that will ball games, regardless of how they are made.

the clowns provoked; to see the great parked tent and "have a good time."

Mrs. Coolidge accompanied him.

One of the senators stood treat to the senate pages at the evening performance—peanuts, sideshows and all. Senators and members of congress shielded at the talk of an evening session and then joined the crowd circusward. After a winter of mud slogging, re-orchestration, unparliamentary language and a sort of "stop-look-listen" attitude all winter, they say congress just let itself loose on circus day, like a parcel of boys.

Y.W.C.A. Biennial Convention

The biennial convention of the Y.W.C.A. in Washington brought together 300 women from 10 different nations and as many of them wore native and distinctive costumes, the effect was what society writers would call "colorful." The Ethiopian delegation brought Mrs. Coolidge a beautiful handkerchief made by one of the delegates. Women came from New Zealand, Australia, China, India and Japan as the most "far-away" countries, with a sprinkling of women from less distant countries as well. The costumes and the names were equally interesting—for instance, it was Frau Emilie Pfeiffer, Kulenkamp, Austria, Miss Ting Shu Ching, China; Miss Ing-

When women reckon the cost of living as shown in their own families, they will wonder how Uncle Sam is going to feed his training camp men on a meager allowance of 45 cents per day.

Regular army allowances are only 20 cents but the cost in temporary camps is said to be greater. The menu will include plenty of fresh fruit, cereals, milk as well as vegetables and meat.

This year the boys in training will be exempt from kitchen police duties, and regular army cooks will tend the ovens.

NEW CURATIVE FOR SCARLET FEVER

BALTIMORE, Md., May 17. A new serum which is said to give promise of revolutionizing the method of treating scarlet fever has been tried out with "very favorable" results in about 18 cases at the Sydenham hospital here.

The new curative is being developed by Dr. Alphonse Raymond Duches, an associate professor of medicine at Columbia university, and its successful use has also been reported by hospitals in New York, New Haven,

Conn., and Peking, China, it was said.

Injection of the new potion into muscles of the patient is said to have the effect of reducing the temperature to normal in about 12 hours, and in practically every case the rash accompanying the fever also is disappears. In some instances the serum is said to cause a higher fever for a short time, but a rapid fall follows.

Best results have been obtained in the early stages of the fever.

Has Money to Burn, But Gets Most Fun Burning Up Auto Track Records

CLIFF DURANT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 15.—The world's most expensive racing car, a speed creation valued at $25,000, will be driven in the International 500-mile race here May 20, by it. C. Durant, millionaire patron of the great gasoline sport, and son of the famous motor magnate.

During the past nine years the younger Durant has spent nearly a half million dollars on racing cars and racing paraphernalia. He has won numerous contests on the Pacific coast, his home and stamping ground. Last year he led the furiously run Indianapolis race, which was won by Tommy Milton, for several laps, when jumping along.

Before he could get it rolling again, he was 22 laps behind the leaders before he could get it rolling again.

Durant, like all sportsmen who drive racing cars for the thrill of speed, doesn't worry nearly so much about the finish as many other drivers. So long as his car is fast enough to keep him up in front duelling with the leaders he is satisfied.

Durant also is an aviator, plays a violin, cornet and saxophone, is regarded as a keen business executive, and will make a tour to the South Sea islands in his own yacht immediately after the Indianapolis race.

With Durant here in Indianapolis is a French valet, a Swedish masseur, a trainer, chauffeur for his three cars, and his own cook.

He trains as vigorously for the race as a heavyweight box fighter working out for a championship bout. Each day he boxes, works out in the gym, rides his horse, or a bicycle—and practices on his musical instruments, as well as rides many practice laps on the speedway.

GAME ON SOUTH COMMON

The St. Peter's-Belmonts

game on the South common tomorrow afternoon will start at 1.30 instead of 2.30 as previously announced. This change in time has been effected so that all those desiring to see the fourth degree parade may do so.

WHAT WILL HIRAM JOHNSON DO AT CLEVELAND CONVENTION?

He and La Follette Are Thorns in Side of Republicans—Fight for Senator in This State Interests Washington—Soldiers in Training Fed on 45 Cents a Day

(Special to The Sun)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 17.—Po- litical speculation as to how Senator Hiram Johnson "will behave" at the Cleveland convention outstrips all other thought, except when it touches local or state interest. He cannot win the nomination for himself, but he can it in his hands to make a lot of trouble for the other fellow.

The democrats have many troubles of their own, but they are thinking their lucky star that they haven't Hiram Johnson on their hands, nor Bob La-Follette, to break up the meeting when it gets started on the supposed "Royal Road to Coolidge."

There are predictions that Johnson may not interfere with the republican convention, but will bide his time and after the democratic convention has nominated its presidential candidate, he may attempt to swing the insurgent element of the republican party over to the democratic nominee and take the stump for him.

That, of course, is only in case no third party candidate of strength materializes, whom Johnson will support.

There will be a farm-labor convention in St. Paul June 17. Whether it will be a serious matter or merely a flash in the pan isn't yet certain. Re- publicans and democrats alike believe the convention will break up in a factional row and no telling what results be forthcoming.

What Johnson might do is unknown. LaFollette is a very sick man in spite of the statements made by friends that he is recovering. Both statements are probably true, but Bob LaFollette is getting older day by day and has undergone several severe illnesses and several serious operations within the past five years. All of which may affect his candidacy, though not his fighting spirit.

Then, too, the so-called Committee of Forty-eight, sponsors of extreme liberal policies—decidedly pink in spots that are not red—will get together on June 17, and on July 4, it is planned to have the LaFollette group meet in a get-together spirit.

So whatever part LaFollette and Johnson play in the political drama this fall, it is certain to be one that will still more widely disrupt the republican party. Whether they will turn openly to the democrats or steer a course that will bring them into prominence only in case the presidential election is thrown to congress, cannot at this moment be forecasted by the most experienced political forecasters.

The Senatorial Fight

Washington is showing an unusual degree of interest in the coming senatorial contest in Massachusetts.

There is good reason. Both Senator David I. Walsh and Speaker Gillett are well known here and in daily touch with political leaders.

It is taken for granted here that Gillett will win out at the primaries, as he has the complete and ardent backing of the president, which in a presidential year will count for much in party plans. He will work in harmony with Coolidge through the campaign and is known to be a Coolidge adviser in all matters of great importance. It will be recalled that Gillett could have had a cabinet place of highest grade had he desired it, but he preferred to remain in congress.

Walsh is one of the senate leaders on the democratic side. He is well known, a splendid orator, has the confidence of his colleagues and is respected and admired by his political opponents. Washington realizes that the republican party is up against a hard proposition in trying to defeat Walsh for re-election, even if the opposing candidate is riding on the flood of Coolidge influence in his home state.

Your correspondent notes that practically every newspaper man discussing the situation, and practically every republican and democrat who introduces the topic, closes by saying, "Well, the man who runs against Senator Walsh will have a hard battle on his hands." Senator Walsh had to meet the opposition of President Wilson as a handi- cap during the early days of his service in the senate. Otherwise he would have unquestionably been placed in chairmanship or places of great power from the first, but Wilson was angered at his attitude on the League of Nations. In spite of that, Walsh has gained rapidly in prestige and power and has won a high place on the democratic side of the senate chamber through his own merits.

President at Circus

We usually regard President Coolidge as a silent hermit, a man who shuns merry scenes, a man who neither seeks or enjoys what most folks call amusements. But it's not so. President Coolidge is a very busy gentleman of quiet tastes, but whose sense of humor is as well developed as that of the average man. He likes to view the passing show from a secluded point of vantage rather than in the glare of the spotlight. He enjoyed sitting on the front porch of the White House, from which he could see in the office the great crowd that would file way up and down Pennsylvania avenue at the close of the business day.

The president broke away from care and went to the circus this week, even without the excuse "The boys want to go." He went because he wanted to see the show himself and enjoy the fun

COMMON SENSE

When a merchant advertises his wares in a newspaper, he does not appeal to the paper, but to its readers. He solicits the patronage of those readers whether he agrees with the policy of the paper or not. To refrain from advertising in a paper of wide circulation simply because he does not agree with the editor on all public questions, is not using common sense. It is a form of business suicide. It has sent many short-sighted business men into bankruptcy. A dealer might as well put a sign over his store notifying all who do not think as he does that he does not want their patronage. Readers of newspaper advertisements know when and where their patronage is welcome.

California Bungalow is Good for Other Localities

CALIFORNIA BUNGALOW AND PLANS

California is the home of the bungalow.

Other parts of the country quickly adopted its attractive structures, building the bungalow more substantially because of the colder weather. But the pretty exteriors and compact room arrangements are retained.

An exceptionally attractive type is shown here. This is a five-room bungalow home, but it has the appearance of a much larger house because of the roof decorations, the terrace that extends the width of the building and the covered entrance porch. The porch at the side over the drive to the garage, which follows the same architectural lines as the home, is an attractive feature.

The entrance door leads into a glorified reception hall, on either side of which are the living and dining rooms, both connected by double-cased openings, which give opportunity to throw the two rooms and hall together. Both rooms are light and airy, having large windows at the side and front, the latter being flanked with long windows reaching to the floor.

An entrance door at the rear of the reception hall leads to a hall that connects the two bedrooms. The bathroom is readily accessible to all parts of the house, being at the end of the hall.

There are many closets, a feature the housekeeper will like. The basement extends under the whole house.

providing space for the heating plant. Such stoves may be applied to wood, or metal with over wood frame, or to brick, tile or concrete. Built in frame with wood or metal with a base for the stove, this home will cost about $500, although building costs vary in different localities.

Quinn, Thomas P. McSorley, J. Emmett Harris, Dr. Richard J. McChesney, John J. Flannery, Thomas J. Fitzgerald and Edward A. Callahan.

MAY PROCESSION AND PILGRIMAGE

The annual May procession and pilgrimage of the Children of Mary of St. Jean Baptist church will be held tomorrow afternoon. The line of march will be formed at the church in Merrimack street at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The participants will then march to the French-American orphanage where a sermon will be delivered by Rev. Augustine Truitt, O.M.I. and benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament will be held.

HOUSE SENSE

The largest amount of real estate ever owned by the majority of men is the plot on which their house stands; their greatest venture in finance is the owning of a home. For it they tie themselves down to a locality, they mortgage their future, they color their children's lives as well as their own. The choosing of a home site, then, should be a matter of grave concern, and the selection made only after careful investigation of all the local conditions present and prospective.

Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 20

"Welcome to the circus breakfast table," shouted several of the circus folks. Jack smiled and then started eating. When coffee was passed Jack explained that he was too young to drink it. "Oh, that's all right," said the fat lady, "we'll get you a glass of milk."

Jack had never seen so many queer people in his life. Right next to him sat a very large lady. "I'm the fat lady of the circus," she explained. "Glad to know you," said Jack. Then the fat lady stood up and shouted, "I want everybody to meet our new little friend, Jack Daw."

COUNCIL COMMITTEE MAKES PLANS TO REVISE BUILDING CODE

Calls Conference With Builders and Building Trades—
Central Bridge Committee Going to Springfield—
Edson School and Aiken St. Bridge Discussed

Two city council committees yesterday made a joint trip to Manchester in the hopes of learning a few things about bridges and public buildings in the Queen City of New Hampshire. They returned early enough to hold their meetings in city hall at 6 and 9 o'clock respectively.

The standing committee on public property looked at several of the public buildings in the Grand state metropolis and paid a long visit in the office of the inspector of buildings there, where they procured a copy of the building code and made comparisons of local and Manchester requirements of buildings.

Will Revamp Local Code

Upon its return this committee, of which Council Arthur Tenet is chairman, the other members being Messrs. Gallagher, Moriarty, Sadler and Chadwick, voted to invite master builders and members of the building trades to appear in the council chamber on Thursday evening, May 23, to discuss the present building code of the city of Lowell and certain contemplated changes therein. Some wide variations were found in the minimum size requirements of this city and Manchester on the matter of rafters, joists and steamship columns, as well as wall thicknesses.

The special committee on bridges, made up of Council President Gallagher, City Engineer Kearney, Councilmen McFadden, Dickson and Lambert, viewed the new bridge spanning the Merrimack at South Manchester. This committee has the matter of replacing Central bridge before it for consideration at this time. In a brief business session of the committee at the close of the trip it was voted to go to Springfield next Friday and view the bridge recently constructed in that city.

Roads and Bridges Viewed

The Manchester bridge, which cost a little less than a cool million, made a decided impression on the committee. It is much longer than the Central bridge would be, but certain architectural features impressed the committee.

The standing council committee on roads and bridges, of which Council J. A. N. Chretien is chairman and Councilors Dickson, Moriarty, Genesi, Cogswell, Daly, Fitzgerald and Stearns the other members, made a tour of the bridges last night. The Aiken street bridge, which the public service board has decided to strengthen and repair was given particular attention and the roadway found to be in bad shape although the superstructure appears excellent.

Manchester Code Modern

The building code in Manchester was found to be much more modern and liberal than is the Lowell building code according to Councilor Genesi, himself a builder. One instance is found in the garage requirements over which there is much dispute here. In Lowell a concrete block garage for two cars must have a wall thickness of eight inches and for a three-car garage the requirement is 12 inches.

In Manchester 8-inch thickness is sufficient up to a 30-foot span, and no enforcement is required up to that dimension. The city solicitor is at present engaged in a revision of the city ordinances, among them the building code. The conference with master builders and members of the building trades will be fruitful of many practical suggestions that can be incorporated in recommendations to the city solicitor, it is thought.

Edson School Question

The Edson school matter was taken up briefly by the property committee in its session, which was called to order at 9 o'clock last night. It was voted to request the superintendent of buildings to furnish cost estimates of remodeling the school so as to reduce or remove the present dangers as to sanitation and safety. This action is for the purpose of comparison with the cost of a new building.

All in all the city hall was kept quite busy with committee meetings yesterday, the planning board holding a meeting with the city solicitor at 4:30 o'clock, the school board and the mayor entering conference at about the same time, and two city council meetings, one at 6 o'clock and the other at 9 o'clock, were so arranged because some members of the council were on both committees.

Many Meetings Next Week

The isolation hospital investigation committee, of which Councilor John W. Daly is chairman, will meet in the mayor's reception room in executive session next Monday night to prepare its report to be submitted to the council. Other members of this committee are Messrs. Fitzgerald, Stearns, Chretien and McFadden.

To probe the recent gas rate raise will also meet next Monday night and will use the council committee room. Councilor Dickson is chairman of this committee and was responsible for the naming of the special committee for this purpose.

To Tour Firehouses

The public safety committee, of which Councilor Hennessey is chairman, will make a tour of the firehouses Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The council at its last meeting voted to request Chief Saunders to advise individual members as to what assignments and reassignments will be made in connection with the authorized purchase of $57,000 worth of new apparatus in addition to the $21,000 worth already ordered by the purchasing agent.

The committee expects to check over the chief's plans in this respect and that is one purpose of the tour. In addition the houses will be given a superficial inspection as to general conditions, appearance of personnel and other phases.

The Fuel Ordinance

The committee on charities, of which Councilor McFadden is chairman, is to meet Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock. At 8 o'clock the council will meet and the charities committee will report on the amendment to the charities ordinance proposed by Councilor Fitzgerald. It is the desire of the council that the present method of distributing charity fuel be continued instead of the distribution being taken away from the city woodyard, thus throwing several city laborers out of work, and given to a private contractor.

Should the committee report adversely on the amendment Mr. Fitzgerald is expected to move to substitute the report and has stated he will fight from the floor in an effort that his amendment may prevail. Certain charitable societies are interested in having the new ordinance given a trial in its present form and they constitute the opposition to Mr. Fitzgerald's proposal. Superintendent of Charities Gormley is aligned with Mr. Fitzgerald on the issue.

INVESTIGATING FIRE IN WANNALANCIT STREET

Inspectors of the state fire marshal's office and the local police detective bureau are conducting an extensive investigation today into circumstances surrounding the origin of a fire and explosion in a Wannalancit street house at 10:45 o'clock last evening.

District Fire Chief Daniel Crowley and Police Lt. Patrick J. Frawley conducted an investigation last evening after the fire was extinguished and found several gallon jugs in a pantry which it is reported, smelled strongly of gasoline or some other like petroleum product. Two of the jugs were taken to the police station.

This morning Chief Edward F. Saunders and Police Captain David Petrie viewed the premises and, after a lengthy investigation, decided that the case was sufficiently suspicious to warrant an investigation by state authorities. Chief Saunders immediately notified the state marshal's office and received information to the effect that one or two deputies would come to this city this afternoon and, if necessary, conduct a fire inquest.

The house in which the fire occurred is owned and occupied by Polyzois Georgopoulos. At the time of the fire there was no one in the house and the residents of nearby houses, when questioned this morning, said they had seen no one about the premises during the evening.

The fire evidently started in the cellar or near the head of the cellar stairs, the exit of which is in the pantry where the empty jugs were found. A sharp explosion, breaking windows throughout the house and frightening passers-by, gave the first warning that a fire was in progress. An alarm was sounded from box 127 at 10:45 o'clock. Several chemical fires and one hose line were brought into action by the firemen and within very few minutes the blaze was extinguished. The cellar of the house and furnishings and woodwork in the rooms on the lower floor were considerably damaged by the flames. No estimate of the loss has been made as yet.

Manslaughter Charge

Crime which struck the Lawrence man in the down-river city last evening, and caused his death in the Lawrence General hospital. Witnesses of the fatality stated the wheels of Kromer's machine passed over the victim's chest.

The accident occurred at Lowell and Warren streets, when the elderly man attempted to cross the street. Kromer, with two young friends, Benoit Smith, 35 Nichols street, and Edward Freeman of 32 C street, both of Lowell, was driving into Lawrence when the mishap took place. The driver claimed he was not going more than 25 miles an hour.

The victim was employed as an overseer in the Everett mills in Lawrence. He was formerly a proprietor of the Brown and Whittier mills, a textile concern once prominent in New England manufacturing circles. He lived at 415 Lowell street.

Land in Ice-Fringed Remote Bay of Paramashiru Island, Kuriles

PARAMASHIRU ISLAND, Kuriles, May 17. (By the Associated Press.)—Blazing a trail through skies never before invaded by an airplane, the three United States army world flyers reached this ice-fringed remote bay bordering the Arctic this morning, thereby gaining for their country and themselves the distinction of being the first to have crossed the Pacific by air.

In negotiating the hazardous hop of 578 miles from Attu island, in the Aleutian group, the pilots, Lieuts. Smith, Wade and Nelson fought through chill Arctic winds and snow storms that whipped their faces with ice-carrying grains.

Two of the planes landed in Koshikawabara bay and the third descended to the water, off the nearby island of Shimushu.

Major John J. Donovan presided yesterday afternoon at a conference of the school board at which the proposal of furnishing more supervision and assistance in the development of athletics in the high school, was discussed. No vote was taken but the consensus of opinion seemed to favor more supervisors of high school athletics, especially in the football season, with an idea to better training and lessening of risks of injury.

Faculty Manager Conway and Headmaster Harris of the high school appeared before the board in its brief session and recommended more assistance be given by the board and the appointment of supervisors authorized. The matter was taken under advisement and will likely be discussed at the next regular meeting of the board.

Exuberant American boyhood, over 10,000 strong, in the full vigor of youth triumphant, marched proudly this afternoon through the principal streets of Lowell in alert and most imposing procession in observance of "Loyalty day," the climax of Boys' week.

The parade was led by the emblem of their beloved country, the Stars and Stripes, floating high and proudly in the van of a vividly patriotic and enthusiastic column of young Americans and as thousands of adults saw them pass and applauded them to the echo the thought could not dawn that the heritage of home and country will be safe in their hands when the years add to their stature and place the mantle of manhood upon their sturdy shoulders.

Boys of all ages and sizes and in all sorts of nondescript costumes by the scores and by the hundreds flocked to the South common this forenoon to take part in the track and field meet conducted as a part of the Boys' Week celebration.

near the Edison school, while the intermediates and seniors used the baseball oval. There was not much head or tail to the program, but no one seemed to care and the boys particularly had a good time.

McGrath, state treasurer of the K. of C.; John S. Quinn, state warden; and state officers from every state council in New England.

The music will be under the direction of Sir Knight James F. Donnelly and he will be assisted by Sir Knights Dr. Thomas F. Carroll, Daniel S. O'Brien, Thomas J. Tobin, Edward P. Saffery, Jr., William F. Thornton, William L. Gookin, Patrick J. Nevin, John F. McArdle, Daniel A. Powers, Michael A. Keefe and others in a most impressive program.

The Auditorium is to be divided into sections and the visiting assemblies are to be in special sections. The pastors of all Catholic churches in Lowell will be invited as guests. It will be a brilliant spectacle in every respect, as nothing has been left undone by those in charge to make it surpass any similar event of its kind.

Among the invited guests will be Cardinal O'Connell and U. S. Senator David I. Walsh. A reviewing stand has been erected in Gorham street, near St. Peter's church, where the cardinal will view the parade in St. Peter's church after the Auditorium exercises. The cardinal will pontificate at benediction in St. Peter's.

The six knights will march in evening dress and will wear the silk hat and carry the baldric and sword. It will be a brilliant spectacle indeed with the uniformity of dress as the outstanding feature.

The line of march will be from Memorial Auditorium, to Kearney square, to Central to Gorham, where a halt will be made at St. Peter's parochial school to permit the guard of honor to leave the line of march and proceed to St. Peter's rectory to escort Cardinal O'Connell to the reviewing stand. The guard of honor will be headed by His Honor, Mayor John J. Donovan and Chief Edward P. Saffery, Jr. Sixteen faithful navigators of visiting assemblies will be included in the guard. State Treasurer Thomas J. McGrath will represent the state council in the guard and Dr. James B. O'Connor the Lowell candidates for the degree. The column will then proceed up Gorham street past the reviewing stand to Main square, to High street, counter-march and return to St. Peter's for benediction. After church the marchers will proceed to Memorial square and then proceed to Memorial Auditorium. The parade will leave the Auditorium for the church at 4.30 o'clock.

In the parade from the Auditorium to St. Peter's church and return, the line of march will be in charge of Chief Marshal Thomas J. O'Donnell. Bishop Delany assembly will be marshalled by John U. McQuaid, R.P.

At last night's meeting of the committee, it was decided to close the doors of the Auditorium at 1.30 o'clock. The degree work will not under way at 2 o'clock, and will be followed by the parade. Members of Bishop Delany assembly will occupy the left of the line of march. Master Watson, Mayor Donovan and Faithful Navigator Donoghue will be in the lead, followed by the navigators of sixteen district assemblies.

Hon. Dennis J. Murphy, chairman of the reception committee and Dr. Richard J. McChesney, classmates at United States Senator Walsh at Holy Cross college are to motor to Clinton to drive the senator to Lowell in the afternoon.

In the evening a banquet will be held in the Auditorium. Louis Watson, master, will preside, and Hon. James B. Casey will be toastmaster. Among the toasts which will be responded to are the following: "The Church," Rev. John H. Healey, O.P.M.G.; "The Order," Hon. William C. Prout, state deputy; "Our City," Hon. John J. Donovan; "Bishop Delany Assembly," John V. Donoghue, R.P.; "The United States of America," United States Senator David I. Walsh; Rev. James F. Lynch, faithful friar, will invoke the blessing. Sir Knights James B. Donnelly, Thos. A. Quinn, John J. Kelley and Andrew A. McCarthy will feature the singing program.

The usher will feature: Sir Knight James F. Hennessy, Division chiefs: Div. A, Sir Knight Frank W. Poye; Div. B, Sir Knight George R. O'Neill; Div. C, Sir Knight John L. McDonough; Div. D, Sir Knight Joseph A. Desreillers; Div. E, Sir Knight J. Walter McKenna; Div. F, Sir Knight Thomas J. Condon.

Morris, Dr. R. J. Gendreau, Dr. William F. Donohue, Delbert E. Ray, John T. Burns, Joseph M. Mahoney, Francis P. Corbett, Francis P. Roche, George F. Brennan, Wilfrid A. Hinchey, A. Archambault, J. Eugene Mullin, Frank J. Flanagan, William F. Murray, William E. Wood, Charles D. Foley, Thomas P. Donnelly, John J. McDonough, Thomas P. Sexton, Walter J. L'Esperance, Frank T. Gookin, J. O'Connell.

Picture and Parade

After the parade it is planned that candidates and Sir Knights will assemble on the steps of the main entrance and between the two flags and be photographed. The uniformity of the evening dress with the red, white and blue baldric and the sword of the degree and the Sir Knights in silk ties will make a scene of much beauty.

The reception committee consists of: Dennis J. Murphy, chairman; Sir Knights Charles W. Holmes, Thomas R. Delaney, John A. Connor, Charles J. Landers, Elias J. McQuade, Dr. Richard J. McChesney, Charles H. Burns, Dr. Hugh Walker, Robert J. Thomas, Hugh J. Molloy, Hugh G. McKee, Daniel H. Walker, John H. McVane, Wilfrid H. Thornton, Andrew Molloy, Albert E. O'Neil and Thomas J. CITY TO BE IN ON MELON CUT

Rep. Slowey Feels Certain Poll Tax Surplus Will Be Returned to Cities

Fails in Effort to Provide Sum Only for Soldiers' Relief Work

Representative Charles H. Slowey in authority for the statement that the report of the ways and means committee recommending proportionate disbursements to contributing municipalities be made of the $2,000,000 surplus raised under the workmen's poll tax clause of the state soldiers' bonus bill will undoubtedly prevail. When the report was made in the house last week Mr. Slowey, quick to sense the fact that there is nothing to be done as to what the city should do with the money, offered the following amendment:

"Mr. Slowey of Lowell moves to amend House Rule No. 1764 by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"Section 2. The sums so apportioned to the cities and towns shall be placed under the management and control of the local department of soldiers' relief, or the office or officers acting in such capacity, where there is no such board in any city or town, to be used for the purpose of aiding veterans and their families who, in the discretion of said board, are in need."

The amendment, the first to be offered, was killed by a 38 to 25 vote. Several other amendments followed in rapid succession but the ways and means committee members fought to keep the recommendations unchanged and they prevailed.

The City of Lowell will receive $50,000 as its share if the present plan goes through. There will be no "strings" on it evidently and the city may dispose of the sum as it sees fit. Councilor John W. Boyle has already suggested from the floor of the Council that it be applied to the salary allotments of the police and fire departments and that with this sudden fortune the city might feel like reviewing the discussion for a pay raise for the members of these departments.

DEMS UNLIKELY TO FIGHT G. O. P. WITH PHRASES

BY HARRY R. HUNT, N.R.A. Service Writer

WASHINGTON, May 17.—George H. Moses, senior senator from New Hampshire, ex-journalist, ex-lawyer, and ex-editor of a national magazine, just looks to turn a catchy phrase.

Doubtless he found this knack helpful in the social perils of his diplomatic days. As American minister to Greece under President Taft, George is reported to have pulled some smooth ones. Also, as editor of the Concord Evening Monitor, he was known throughout his state for his brilliancy and sparkle of his journalistic gems.

But it is in politics, Moses believes, that the opportunity for reaping rich rewards from a well-turned line is greatest. A well-phrased phrase that catches popular fancy, he submits, will do more to win a campaign, put across a candidate than all the logic and argument and hard indigestible facts that can be assembled.

Willing to lead the republican party out of the wilderness of the cooling campaign, Moses recommends that party managers keep the spotlight focused constantly on "The Calm, Cautious, Courteous, Christian Character of Calvin Coolidge."

Wherefore, democrats will do well to fight an alternative battle with the G.O.P. and will answer the republican challenge to "Keep Cool With Coolidge" by retorting, "Why put the country in Cold Storage?"

Harriet Stanton Blatch, daughter of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, pioneer suffragist, suggests that women who had difficulty in adjusting themselves to the policies and principles of the two old parties, which still function chiefly from the masculine viewpoint, seize the opportunity to get in on the ground floor in the La Follette party.

"We make the party truly progressive, in its recognition of equal suffrage as well as in its attitude toward other fundamentals," she says, "second place on the ticket might properly be filled by a woman, and I suggest Jane Adams as a vice presidential candidate who would draw thousands of women's votes to the La Follette party."

Vermonter in Washington at a "Maple Sugar Party" thrown by Senator Foster Hale, whooped (Vt.) boy as a candidate for president. A "sweet" time was had by all.

HALF HOLIDAY

In accordance with their annual custom the E. A. Wilson Co. has arranged to give its employees a week's half holiday during the summer. Closing the downtown office at 12.30 every Thursday afternoon and their yards and warehouses every Saturday at 12 o'clock.

THE SPELLBINDER

It is suggested that where a nomination made by Mayor Donovan for any particular office is not confirmed within a reasonable time, say in thirty days or thereabouts, the nomination should be withdrawn and another substituted, in which case it might be well to nominate the present incumbent for re-election. The head of most departments is in a very uncomfortable state of mind while he remains as a holdover with another candidate named to take his place; but with confirmation refused or suspended. The rule of the old charter that if a nomination were not confirmed within 30 days it automatically lapsed, was a good one and should be followed, even if it is not in the present city charter. To hold a nomination like the sword of Damocles over the neck of a public official is not likely to operate for the good of the service. His honor in making a nomination might specify that it would lapse in thirty days if not confirmed, or he could withdraw a name sent down at any time, if he finds that if fall of confirmation.

Cost of Dredging Concord

As a result of Senator Howard's amendment, the bill for the survey of the Concord as already passed, will be submitted to a referendum in Lowell, Billerica and Chelmsford. It is estimated that the total cost will be less than $3000, although this amount is set out in the bill as the maximum. Assuming that it would cost $2000, the share that Billerica and Chelmsford would pay would be about $150 each. If either or both should reject the measure, then it would remain for the city of Lowell to accept either the entire expense or her pro rata part of it. It is understood from informal sources that the representatives of the Concord, in the engineering department, that the expense will fall considerably under $2000. In that case, the estimate of $2000 as Lowell's share would probably be sufficient to meet the expense of the entire work.

Annuitants for Firemen's Widows

The bill introduced by Representative Brennan providing for an annuity for the widow of the late Fireman Foss is on its way to congress and will soon be signed by the governor. The amount of this annuity, like that of the other two recently provided, will be $500, each being subject to the approval of the city council. That provision for the widow of Ronald D. Sullivan is already law. There is some satisfaction in knowing that the widows who have lost their husbands through accidents in the service of the fire department, will be protected even to this extent, through the good will of the city.

What Redefining City May Mean

In case the election commission in redistributing the city should increase the number of wards from nine to eleven, as it probably will, then in order to keep the number of councilors at 15 as provided in the charter, the number elected at large will be reduced to four. If a majority of the wards should prove to be republican, then that party would have a majority in the city council. It is reported in some quarters that this move is contemplated and that it was with this purpose in view that the movement for a return to partisan government was dropped, after it had been proposed to introduce a measure for that purpose in the legislature.

Contest for U. S. Senator

There is still much speculation as to the outcome of the republican race for the nomination for United States senator. The fact that Calvin Coolidge is the hand-picked candidate of the present Coolidge, has undoubtedly aroused considerable opposition on the part of the people who feel that a matter of this kind should not be decided at Washington. Louis A. Coolidge evidently feels that the opposition of President Coolidge is directed at him personally. His resignation may be judged from a little while ago, he issued a high tribute to the late Edwin Upton Curtis, police commissioner of Boston during the police strike as a result of which Calvin Coolidge, then governor, won nationwide applause for his alleged handling of the strike. Mr. Coolidge after an extended paragraph on Mr. Curtis, speaks of his courage, his nobility, and his handling of the trouble, and tells of his order to the discharge of strikers, and that "all this time he stood alone, not knowing any morning whether he would live to see another day. After that, the strike, and then the riots and then the state and city lined up by his side. And Massachusetts sent a thrill across the continent because at last a man was found with honest fearlessness and vision, who dared to give the order to attack and would not beat a retreat. It was the strategy of a great general and for this Curtis merits the eternal gratitude of Massachusetts and the United States." Just what bearing all this may have upon the present campaign is difficult to see, but it states in plain terms that the credit he had in the police strike and winning a victory for law and order belonged to Edwin U. Curtis rather than Calvin Coolidge. That is the conclusion stated by Louis A. Coolidge, candidate for U. S. senator, apparently in an effort to remove the halo from the head of Calvin Coolidge which, according to his namesake, belonged to Curtis.

Conc. Frederick W. Dillinger of Cambridge is still a candidate for the nomination and while the name of Cong. Rogers has been mentioned, the congressman himself has not shown any inclination to enter the fight, and now that Speaker Gillett has been chosen as the administration candidate it is not likely that Mr. Rogers will allow his name to be used even as a possibility in the contest.

Fence-up of Wheeler Exploded

Just at present events are assuming a rather exciting turn at Washington, and in fact all over the country in the political aspect. One of the leading events of the present week was the exoneration of Senator Wheeler, a democrat who had been chairman of the committee appointed to investigate Attorney General Clegg. It was evidently a frame-up by some of the republican statesmen, but like the attempt to blacken and defame Senator Walsh of Montana, who has had charge of the investigation of the oil scandals, it has proved a boomerang against its promoters and against the republican party. Here is a sentence from the decision of the committee appointed to investigate the indictment of Senator Wheeler on the charge of having accepted a fee for acting as counsel for a client before one of the government's departments: "We wholly exonerate him from any and all violations of the fed-

Issues Annoying to G. O. P.

There are a few things that are causing the republican leaders a great deal of perplexity at the present time. One of these is the prospect of a third party under the leadership of Senator La Follette coming into the field, and the other, the Ku Klux Klan issue. As to whether La Follette will run as an independent candidate or at the head of a third party, will be decided at a convention to be held on July 1 or after the democratic convention shall have concluded its work. The La Follette leaders have decided on this program and are ignoring the plans of the more radical element in their group to hold the convention as called on June 17 after the close of the republican convention.

The Klan Issue

Senator La Follette spurs his supporters to support a platform expected that he will form an alliance with the former labor group of which Senator Capper has been a conspicuous leader. At the present time, the La Follette men as well as the senator himself, are more inclined to favor his running directly as an independent candidate for president. It is estimated that the support of a third party which would constitute a third party if it were organized, and he would be free from the handicap of having a ticket cluttered up with candidates for senator and various other offices.

On the other hand, the democratic party would be equally embarrassed if it remained silent in regard to the Klan, for the reason that the democratic campaign in Texas can help to nominate presidential candidates of a straight Klan or anti-Klan issue. For this reason, it is predicted that the democratic platform will contain a plank condemning the activities of secret political organizations. The fact that Senator Underwood has come out strongly against the Klan and in favor of placing the issue in the democratic platform, has increased his strength as a candidate quite considerably during the past two months.

The Volstead Law

As to the agitation for a change in the Volstead law, it is not likely that the republicans will touch the matter beyond an appeal for strict enforcement of the 18th amendment. It is likely, however, that the democrats will make an appeal for modification of the law, and against the prohibition act, not for its overthrow or prohibition, but for its better enforcement and in order to overcome much of the opposition now directed against the law. The recent padlocking of quite a number of the leading clubs and cabaret houses in New York, will stir up more opposition in that state against the objectionable features of the Volstead act and will bring added support to the so-called wet candidates.

M. E. CONFERENCE

Decision on Church's War Attitude Expected at Today's Session

SPRINGFIELD, May 17.—Whether the Methodist church is to go on record as refusing to take part in any war or as willing to support wars in self-defense or the defense of humanity, will probably be decided at today's session of the Methodist Episcopal general conference. Majority and minority reports of the standing committee on the state of the church were scheduled to be brought before the house soon after the opening of the meeting.

The other outstanding event of this day, according to prediction, may be an attempt by certain delegates to have reconsidered the action of the conference yesterday in tabling a substitute to a committee report on the coming quadrennium. The substitute would have instructed the episcopacy committee to leave unfilled five existing vacancies on the board of bishops.

STAGE SET FOR BIGGEST SCANDAL YET AT WASHINGTON

"Old Guard" Tries to Stop Investigation But Democrats and Progressives Order it Ahead and Hire Heney as Counsel to Conduct Probe

BY CHARLES F. STEWART

N.E.A. Service Writer

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The biggest scandal of all is just about to be uncovered by the Washington investigators now.

The prohibition scandal!

The investigation isn't into the merits of the law, concerning which, of course, opinions differ. The inquiry is to be into the fashion of its enforcement, or non-enforcement.

Dry generally admit corruption in the law's administration. But they say the wets want an investigation, not to end corruption, but to get the law changed. So most of them have fought investigation tooth and nail. A few, however, like Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, have clamored for publicity as loudly as any wet.

The wets have fought hard for an inquiry but they're a minority in the present congress. Prohibition cropped out incidentally in various investigations but it wasn't their main theme. The subject wasn't thoroughly ventilated. It's unlikely it would have been, but for an accident.

Some time ago Senator Couzens began asking questions about the treasury. They related to taxes. But prohibition enforcement is part of the treasury's job. Couzens is a wet. The

"old guard" and the dries wanted neither of these subjects stirred up. Couzens was provided with an investigating committee, but a committee guaranteed not to investigate. He tried to go ahead by himself for a while. Then he saw it was no use, with his fellow-committee-men hampering him. So he hired a lawyer, Francis J. Heney, famed muckraker to help him.

This meant publicity, despite all the "old guard" and the dries could do. They figured it had got to be stopped. Senator Watson moved the investigating committee's discharge. That was too raw. The senate hadn't the nerve to back him up. Then, according to Senator Norris, "Secretary Mellon and President Coolidge went crazy." Urged by Mellon, the president sent to the senate his celebrated message saying Couzens had no right to hire a private lawyer, cooling the senators for their investigations and virtually ordering them to "cut it out."

Just then Couzens fell ill, delaying a showdown. The senate had to decide whether to go ahead or quit. It had been a lineup of the wets and dries, the dries would have won. But instead it proved to be a lineup between the pre-investigation element and the "old guard." The pre-investigation

Long List of Condemned Tenement Properties to be Removed — Owners Will Construct Recreation Park for Children if City Will Not Improve Street—Widening of Thoroughfare Would Make Better Route From Merrimack Street to Railroad Station

Locks and Canals proprietors are prepared with ample financial resources to go more than half way with the municipal government of Lowell in a comprehensive project involving the widening of a long section of the city.

The sole object in view is the proprietor's ambition to improve an almost forgotten main transportation artery—Suffolk street—leading directly from Merrimack street to the city hall and directly to Middlesex street and the central freight and passenger transfer territories.

The attention of Chairman Clarence M. Wood of the city park commission and the Lowell planning board has been called to the proposition informally advanced by the Locks and Canals proprietors through the executive offices of Arthur T. Safford, who, today, explained in detail some of the proprietors' plans that are by no means in the formative period at the present time.

The project includes a generous offer to the citizens of Lowell of a gift of land suitable for either a street widening initiative, or a small public parkway along the Suffolk street bank of the canalway. The Locks and Canals proprietors strongly favor the parkway project, believing it would transform the Suffolk street thoroughfare now possessing many undesirable physical aspects and housing conditions, and renovate a large section of one of Lowell's oldest and most fertile mill tenement districts.

The thoroughfare improvement problem is now engaging the earnest attention of the proprietors and promises to come up for formal consideration before the planning board in official form very soon. The Sun was told today.

In the opinion of leading citizens and municipal authorities, as well as Locks and Canals proprietors, ancient Suffolk street, the time-worn, badly dilapidated and poorly paved relic of former well constructed mill tenement housing territory has become a public eyesore as well as a menace in other directions.

In the process of the Suffolk street renovation contemplated, numerous hygienic tenement structures of various descriptions, now battered, weathered and in a shambles condition throughout, are to be torn down and removed by Locks and Canals proprietors. It is a public necessity, in a way, and so regarded by all who have learned of the proprietors' plans in perspective.

Portions of the irregular-shaped, outworn tenements that were erected nearly 100 years ago when Lowell was an infant in textile rompers, are falling apart slowly—crumbling on weak foundations and unsafe as well as wholly undesirable for further tenancy.

Orders were issued as early as last January for all tenants to move. Most of them have departed, but one or two small families still cling to the interior of one crumbling relic of former days.

No New Buildings

That the Locks and Canals proprietors have no intention of erecting any new buildings on the site of the blacksmith shop once removed and the sites of the remaining buildings which will disappear in the near future, was admitted today by Mr. Safford in an interview relative to the proprietors' motives in ordering out tenants and then leveling the old blacksmith shop.

Mr. Safford said, in part:

"The proprietors contemplate no building construction campaign on the land adjoining the canal from the Broadway-Suffolk street corner toward Fletcher street after the buildings abutting the canal are removed.

"The land to be cleared is not to be used in any way to assist for extending the Locks and Canals service, neither is it for sale.

"While we have no approved plans of any kind for the use of the land to be made vacant, the proprietors have considered suggestions as to its ultimate use in a public way. Consideration has been made of propositions calling for use of the tenement property land in a suggested widening of Suffolk street. We have also considered the possibilities of a small recreation park for the use of residents in the Suffolk street neighborhood."

Mr. Safford stated that he had informally called the Lowell planning board's attention to the proprietors' contemplated renovations and suggestions about Suffolk street highway betterments that might follow the proprietors' gratuitously giving the city the tenement land, providing the thoroughfare would be widened and modernized improved and made a better transportation way.

Relieve Traffic Congestion

The Locks and Canals executive is a firm believer in Suffolk street—from Merrimack street to Fletcher street and Middlesex street—as one most desirable thoroughfare in Lowell that should be used more than it is today by general transportation interests, particularly that transportation of the motor truck family that piles back and forth from the Middlesex street railroad station and freight houses to the center of Lowell and all out-branching business districts.

Mr. Safford firmly believes that the greater usage of Suffolk street would relieve much of the present traffic congestion in other sections of Lowell's street transportation system, providing the ancient highway were properly widened as suggested by Locks and Canals proprietors along the route where the battered tenement houses are soon to disappear.

Mr. Safford stated today that the corporation he represents is prepared to demolish and remove the tenement house properties and level the area in the street-widening program, if it is to come. The proprietors feel that they are giving something in an excellent cause and there is no desire to place any great financial burden whatever upon the city of Lowell if the street-widening plan should be approved and carried out with the city's approval and co-operation.

Chairman Clarence Wood of the park commission said that the Suffolk street widening plan and improvements, had not been brought to the attention of city government officials in any formal way and that no members of the commission had discussed the matter except in an informal way.

Lowell Planning Board

The Lowell planning board has not yet been called upon officially to study any plans for the widening of Suffolk street, Mr. Wood said today. The Locks and Canals proprietors had called board members' attention to the situation in the Suffolk street neighborhood, Mr. Wood continued, but no

REMARKABLE RECOVERY OF MRS. SPINK

Gives Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Full Credit

Minnesota Junction, Wis.—"I was under treatment, but nothing seemed to help me, and I was run-down and so weak that I had to remain in bed much of the time and was like an invalid. I had pains in my abdomen and in the female organs, and my stomach bothered me. My husband saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised, thought it must be good, and brought it home to me and advised me to try it. After taking one bottle I was able to eat, and after six bottles I wasn't doing my own work, which I hadn't been able to do for years. I have a new baby who is doing nicely, and I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and feeling better than I have for four years. The medicine is surely wonderful and a good thing to have in the house."—Mrs. GEORGE SPIKE, Minnesota Junction, Wisconsin.

A country-wide canvass of purchasers of the Compound reports 98 per cent. benefited.

REAR VIEW OF BUILDINGS TO BE DEMOLISHED

Locks and Canals Will Assist In Improving Suffolk St.

As a result of a call from Mr. Suffolk, members of the planning board, about a week ago, paid an informal visit to the territory under consideration for improvements. This survey was only a casual one, the visit being in no sense an action of official character, Chairman Wood declared.

Since that informal survey of the old tenement house surroundings on the banks of the canal under the guidance of Locks and Canals proprietors, the planning board has not considered the matter because no program or request for a formal hearing has been filed. It is the intention of the Locks and Canals proprietors to demolish the Suffolk street improvements in perspective, therefore, remain for the present without executive consideration of any kind.

The improvements proposed by Locks and Canals proprietors on the Suffolk thoroughfare would, in the estimation of many leading citizens and students of local motor transportation problems, be welcomed by a majority of present traffic-handlers, local and transient, who would, it is confidently believed, appreciate the street widening intended to relieve to a large extent present congestions in the movement from all directions of heavy traffic through Lowell.

The Tenement Houses

The numbers of the tenement structures on Suffolk street that are to be cleared away later on when Locks and Canals decides what to do with the property along the canal to be made vacant run from 145 to 157. There are old-fashioned three-deckers, with flimsy, weather-damaged back piazzas in the rear overhanging the mill waters. There are also two-story "long tenements," with rolling cottage houses in between the larger properties. All show evidence of great decay, particularly the portions that jut out to the edge of the canal.

Lessons of the houses now condemned to destruction and valuations assigned by the city of Lowell, are as follows:

145-155 Suffolk street—Apostola Daskas; four-tenement house, $2800.

151-157 Suffolk street—The M. Conolly; four-tenement and one single house, $3000.

153-155 Suffolk street—Anastasia Klafas; house and store, $1000.

157 Suffolk street—Julius Richards; junk and blacksmith shop, $450. (This building has just been demolished and removed by Locks and Canals proprietors.)

LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Speakers Discuss League and Permanent Court of International Justice

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—The League of Nations and the permanent court of international justice were discussed today by speakers before the annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Asserting that several recent instances had illustrated the value of the permanent court of international justice, Stanley O. Hudson, Boston professor of international law at Harvard, said the court would be the world's agency for the promotion of peace. "It is not to be a substitute for war," he declared, "it can at least be supported as a hope for the future of peace."

Miss Ruth Morgan of the National League of Women Voters, New York city, said the establishment of a world court and the adherence thereto would be a real step towards the elimination of war. "The principle of the local decision and arbitration of international disputes," she declared, "will not be established without high endeavor and great sacrifice, but so soon as we face the fact that we are choosing between inevitable war and the creation of effective machinery for the settlement of difficulties, we shall be preparing the national mind morally and spiritually to use that machine in the day of danger."

Arthur Bullard, New York, editor of Our World, said the settlement of the Mosul and Upper Silesia frontier questions and gained many friends in Europe for the League of Nations.

"The refusal of the United States to join the league, was a serious setback to its friends in Europe and greatly heartened its enemies," said Mr. Bullard.

Declaring that the presence of many non-European nations in the League of Nations did not make it a world association, Philip Marshall Brown of Princeton university, said that in actual practice the league had proved to be primarily a European concern and its interests in the main of a political character.

"The indissoluble union of the covenant of the league with the treaty of Versailles was a lamentable mistake," said Dr. Brown. "The league was cursed from its inception by this relationship."

"The United States was more than justified in its refusal to ratify the treaty of Versailles, and in its signing of a separate treaty, with Germany which affords a just basis for a durable peace between the two nations."

"The greatest service that the United States can render to the cause of human brotherhood and the world peace is to maintain its traditional foreign policy. We cannot afford to be implicated in the decisions of purely political questions in Europe."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

THE TWINS VISIT MR. GULLIVER

"I SOON DISCOVERED THAT I WAS TIED DOWN"

We have seen so many people in Once-Upon-a-Time Land that there are not many left to visit," said Mister Muggs as he stopped his magic automobile beside the place where the twins were playing.

"Where are we going today?" cried Nick as he and Nancy climbed in, and the fairyman shut the door and started the thingamajig.

"How would you like to go and call on Mister Gulliver?" asked Mister Muggs. "Like Alice in Wonderland, and Sinbad, he is a good story teller and can tell you all sorts of interesting things that happened to him."

"Hooray! That will be fine!" cried Nick. "Let's hurry."

So away they whizzed over the Fairyland Road till they came to Once-Upon-a-Time Land, and at last reached the house of L. Gulliver, Esq.

"I rather thought you'd be along to see me," said Mister Gulliver kindly after he had shaken hands all around and told one of his men to look after the car. "You have been to see so many of my neighbors. Come and sit down and I'll give you a drink of fruit juice that I learned to make from the Lilliputians."

"Who are they?" asked Nancy.

"They are the people upon whose shores I landed the first time I was shipwrecked," said Mister Gulliver. "I'll tell you about them."

"When I swam to shore in this strange land, I was tired out, so I lay down on the grass to sleep."

"How long I slept I do not know, but when I awakened, I couldn't move."

Other speakers said that increased efforts were being made to solve the German problem, but that the prospects for a rapid cessation of German foreign trade was not promising.

Discussing Germany's economic and trade position Harold G. Moulton, director of the Institute of Economics, Washington, D. C., asserted that the ability to export increasing quantities was the crux of the whole German trade problem.

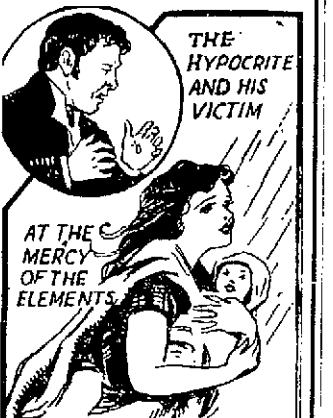

"Germany can pay for imports only provided she can find export markets," said Mr. Moulton. "She must have imports both of food and raw materials. If the people are to be adequately nourished and if domestic industry is to be preserved, not only are reparations payments dependent upon the recovery of German markets, but Germany's buying power and Germany's whole industrial security is dependent upon the recovery of her foreign trade."

"The prospect of a rapid expansion of German foreign trade and the development of an export surplus, is by no means alluring. Judging by the tariff and commercial policies of the world, German goods are not wanted in huge quantities."

SAVE YOUR ENERGY

The strenuousness of daily life often causes Mr. Mann of Dayton to produce more than a little. He had many friends who succumbed to the strain and sought the advice of a shrewd friend on how to keep a healthy state of mind, as well as of body.

"The relationship of state of mind to general health is a subject that fills many volumes, but these few brief fundamentals were prescribed for Mr. Mann:

1.—Don't run away from emotions. Don't fight them. Accept them as the wellspring of action.

- 1.—Try to be efficient.
- 2.—Make decisions that you can stand by and that won't bother you afterward. In other words, have your decisions clean cut.
- 3.—Do things without calling out any more reserve energy than is necessary. Economize on energy.
- 4.—Get a combination of work and play, of rest and exercise and entertainment.
- 5.—Don't worry.

VERY PRETTY AFFAIR NEEDED TO BE HELPED UP STAIRS

Senior Prom at High School
Big Success—Coburn Hall
Scene of Beauty

The first formal event in the 1924 commencement program at the high school was the senior prom held last evening in Coburn hall, attended by several hundred young people who found in it one of the most delightful socials ever given by undergraduates of the school.

The class social committee headed by Merrill Calkins had spent long hours in perfecting plans for the dance, and an elaborate decorative scheme which succeeded in wholly changing the somewhat austere presence of the lofty hall and transformed it into a bower of beauty. The hall windows were screened with lattice-work in the colors of maroon and gold, chosen as the class colors and paper streamers of the same colors hung from the large ceiling chandeliers and side wall light brackets. A window box of tulips ran the whole length of the stage and the stage and woodwork was covered by gold foil. Splashes of gold relieved the bare walls on the side of the hall where there are no windows. It was ever seen locally and the fact that Coburn hall does not easily lend itself to decoration, made it even more effective and noticeable.

For the matrons one corner was set apart as a drawing room, with comfortable chairs, soft rugs and table and bridge lamps creating a comfortable and restful atmosphere.

Special lighting effects were gained by the use of a spotlight which changed from red to green to blue and small yellow moons over the two main exit doors. During one dance confetti and streamers of colored crepe paper rained down on the dancers and in another toy balloons added to the gaiety of the scene. It was a carnival spirit before attained by a high school group and added immeasurably to the success and pleasure of the evening.

For the greater part of the evening general dancing was enjoyed, but during an intermission at 10 o'clock less were served and later on there was a variety May pole dance with all the young people as participants.

The matrons were Miss Mary A. Webster, Mrs. Henry H. Harris, Miss Emma Bradley, Miss Mary C. Joyce, Miss Ruth Sawyer and Miss Edith Erskine. Assistant Merrill Calkins on the social committee and largely responsible for the splendid sociability which obtained. Ralph Butler, Richard Welch, Madeline Pelletier, Morris Cohen, Douglas Flaherty, Conrad Quirk, Edwin Hall, Sadie O'Neill and Marcela Lipchitz.

STATE CONTROL OF MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE

SOBIA, May 17.—Strong agitation is on foot in Bulgaria for legislation that shall take away from the church the important functions of marriage and divorce, which have been exclusively in its hands since the beginning of the Orthodox church. Proponents of the scheme argue that so important a question as the family life of the people ought to be put under the control of the state, as it has been in Roumania.

GILLETTE, DALLINGER AND COOLIDGE OUTLINE THEIR PLATFORMS

Annual Luncheon of Roosevelt Club in Boston—Gillett Says No Chance of Any Change in Volstead Law—Dallinger and Coolidge Present Views

ROSTON, May 17.—The candidates for the republican nomination for United States senator from Massachusetts, outlined their platforms at a luncheon of the Rostons club today. Speaker Frederick H. Gillett, unable to attend, sent a letter to Robert M. Washburn, secretary of the club, in which he said there was "no doubt that the platform of a substantial change in the Volstead law" and referred to President Coolidge as the "most astute asset of the republican party."

The other speakers were Congress man Frederick W. Dillingham, and Louis A. Coolidge, treasurer of the United Shoe Machinery Corporation.

The 13th amendment, said Congressman Dillingham, "was adopted and ratified by the people, and that party ever retained any power among voters to the constitution. No unbiased person can travel through the United States and fail to be impressed with the fact that the people of the country as a whole have definitely made up their minds upon this question, and that there is not the slightest possibility of its 13th amendment being repealed."

"What is true that in many parts of the country, particularly along the Atlantic seaboard, the Volstead law is not strictly enforced, the same is true of other laws. The 13th amendment is today far better enforced than the 11th and 15th amendments, and in spite of all their illicit manufacture and sale of liquor, it is a fact that the great mass of the people of the country, especially in the south, are children are vastly better off than they ever were before."

Mr. Coolidge in his address did not touch directly on prohibition, but referred to printed copies of letters written by him to friends in which he said that he was "heartily in favor of enforcing all laws," that "prohibition he always voted for," "his house," and believed in it as a local proposition, but that he had no objection to prohibition as a national-wide affair, that he would like to see the Volstead act "readily enforceable if possible" and that "it should be made to conform religiously to the terms of the 13th amendment."

"I shall be proud," he said, "to support Calvin Coolidge in his courageous policies. I believe he will be elected."

"My platform as has been frequently announced of late, is, few laws, lower taxes and individual rights."

California Bungalow is Good for Other Localities

California is the home of the bungalow, providing space for the heating plant, fuel storage, etc.

Other parts of the country quickly adopted its attractive structures, building the bungalow more substantially because of the colder weather. But the pretty exterior and compact room arrangements are retained.

An exceptionally attractive type is shown here. This is a five-room bungalow home, but it has the appearance of a much larger house because of the roof decorations, the terrace that extends the width of the building and the covered entrance porch. The pergola at the side over the drive to the garage, which follows the same architectural lines as the house, is an attractive feature.

The entrance door leads into a cool, bright reception hall, on either side of which are the living and dining rooms, both connected by double doors. The living room has a fireplace, and the dining room has a large window and a bay window. The latter being flanked with long windows reaching to the floor.

An entrance door at the rear of the reception hall leads to a hall that connects the two bedrooms. The bathroom is readily accessible to all parts of the house, being at the end of the hall.

There are many closets, a feature the housekeeper will like. The basement extends under the whole house.

LOWELL TOWN TAXI IS SAFETY SERVICE

Safe taxicab service is one of the orders of the day in public transportation circles. No well-organized taxi corporation eager for public patronage today, will stand for amateur driving, poorly equipped vehicles and reckless handling of passenger fares.
Lowell taxicab service is ideal for the needs of the community at large.
That is true of the Lowell Town
Taxi service in particular.
Probably no local all-around-taxi town taxi concern is providing better or more comfortable cars, more expert drivers or more careful drivers than the Lowell Town Taxi—a local transportation service with a reputation of the best. As proof of the popularity of Lowell Town Taxi operators and cars, feminine patronage of the progressive concern is heavily increasing.
Courtesy is the rule as well as careful driving at all times. There

THERMOID BRAKE
LININGS APPLIED

Free service in many lines of work calling for automobile adjustments and renewals of operating parts, is one of the attractive offerings to customers who patronize the popular auto supply mart of Fred Thomas at 320 Bridge street, Centralville. Fred, manager of this fast-growing establishment, purveying a multitude of automobile accessories from brake linings to crank case, can always be found on deck at the Bridge street house. In case of trouble that involves the dispatching of a service expert to outside points, the Thomas Auto Supply company promptly attends to the case, meeting every call and filling every requirement in average automobile renewalions, both in power adjustments and necessary parts.

The spring of the year calls for a few new embellishments on your fast year's supply, perhaps. Make the old top look like new with the Thomas Auto supply's ideal top dressing, "Red Oval." It is inexpensive—the quality is tip-top—the results are lasting. The "Red Oval" is known all over the country and Lowell automobilists use no other top dressing when they look after their requirements in this direction.

Manager Fred Thomas is a specialist in applying Thermo-Brake linings.
Just bring in your hands and you'll be surprised. The Thomas house charges only for material used—no charge for service in material applications. Free crank case service is also always the rule.

Manager Thomas advises filling up with supreme auto oil, unexcelled for quality lasting and smooth-running perquisites. And remember—no charge for service is the slogan in the advertising and over the door of the popular Thomas Auto Supply house at 320 Bridge street. The handy telephone number is 1725.

UNION SHEET METAL'S
SPECIAL NEW LINES

Our corner advertiser, the Union
Sheet Metal company, located at 237 Thorncliffe street, displays a new car in connection with regular "adv."s this week, offering service in special automobile lines such as body, fender and radiator work. The Union Sheet Metal company is the pioneer concern in Lowell to do work in this line in a successful way. It has been doing it for the past 12 years, when it started to bump out bodies and fenders, make new fenders and do all the necessary sheet metal work about the automobiles.
About that time the automobile was fast displacing the horse in all industrial work, and up to this time business and individuals had been sending radiators and fenders to Boston to be repaired, which meant a great loss of time and extra expense. Messrs. Large and McLean, seeing the need of a department for this line of work in Lowell, secured the necessary equipment and men to do this work in connection with their regular sheet metal shop. This new venture was a success from the start and they soon had to add to their working force.

It is one thing to make a good start and quite another thing to keep it going. You must satisfy people, in other words, you must be reliable and always on the job;
courteous to customers and be able to do first-class work. This concern has tried to do these things and has so far succeeded that their business has steadily increased.

In developing this new line of work, they have not neglected the regular lines of metal work such as floor plate work in mills, carriages, skylights and metal roofing, gutters and conductors and general jobbing.
They also have the exclusive agency for the well known Messrs. Furness.
The proprietors of this concern, Messrs. Large and McLean, give their personal supervision to all details of the work required.

regrettable owner's neglect were noted when a summary of the recent fire sufferers in the city hall square business area was made up by the insurance adjusters.

In some cases, personal property losses were suffered in total values because owners had failed to insure for even partial protection. There were meagre insurance policies on other real estate properties involved in the confounding losses list, also, where proper attention to values and placing of fair insurance policy amounts, would have limited the damages to much smaller sums.

There is no safer financial protection in the world than an insurance policy of sufficient value to include properties that have been lost. Fire, automobile and other liability insurance offered by sterling, long-established concerns, is handled by one of Lowell's insurance concerns—W. E.
Dodge & Company, Proprietor Edson
K. Humphrey, who is widely known as an expert in all matters of insurance, is ready to explain the virtues of any policies which may be desired by anyone anxious to secure information that will protect them in times of fire and other disasters. A call at the Humphrey Office in Wyman's exchange will find all this valuable information available at any time.

cial musical program with Miss Kathleen Jennings as soloist has been ar-

TYPEWRITER SERVICE TO MEET ALL DEMANDS

Perhaps you are tired of pounding that old typewriter machine that you have had for years, the one that doesn't run very smooth-running when you purchased it at the second-hand store you delight to trade in on clutters about town for bargain. One cent pay $11.50 for a "second" and expect it to stand right up and run forever of course.

The demands in modern offices, in banks, schools, and quarters and industrial establishments, and for modern typewriting. Modern exstructed typewriters of regulation makes are called for today in the most up-to-date mercantile establishments. Good typewritten letters, neatly worked out on good heavy stationery, with types showing clearly and evenly in regular procession, are business-bringers always. The standard of a business firm which employs only good quality typewriting machines in its business correspondence department, is established firmly in the estimation of recipients of the letter that contain quality typewriting at all times.

Low business men of integrity overlook their office typewriting machines when asking renovations or additions. And the famous Remington always has first call with the "standards." Remingtons have a reputation to maintain and the quality machines that have come from the manufacturing headquarters during all the years that have gone since the name became a office by-word, are without number.

HOUSE SENSE

The largest amount of real estate ever owned by the majority of men is the plot on which their house stands; their greatest venture in finance is the owning of a home. For it they tie themselves down to a locality, they mortgage their future, they color their children's lives as well as their own. The choosing of a home site, then, should be a matter of grave concern, and the selection made only after careful investigation of all the local conditions present and prospective.

Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 20

"Welcome to the circus breakfast table," shouted several of the circus folks. Jack smiled and then started eating. When coffee was passed Jack explained that he was too young to drink it. "Oh, that's all right," said the fat lady, "we'll get you a glass of milk."

Jack had never seen so many queer people in his life. Right next to him sat a very large lady. "I'm the fat lady of the circus," she explained. "Glad to know you," said Jack. Then the fat lady stood up and shouted, "I want everybody to meet our new little friend, Jack Daw."

COUNCIL COMMITTEE MAKES PLANS TO REVISE BUILDING CODE

Calls Conference With Builders and Building Trades—
Central Bridge Committee Going to Springfield—
Edson School and Aiken St. Bridge Discussed

Two city council committees yesterday made a joint trip to Manchester in the hopes of learning a few things about bridges and public buildings. The committee on bridges, headed by Councilor J. A. N. Chretien, and the committee on public buildings, headed by Councilor J. A. N. Chretien, returned early enough to hold their meetings in city hall at 8 and 9 o'clock respectively.

The standing committee on public buildings looked at several of the public buildings in the Granite state metropolis and paid a long visit in the office of the inspector of buildings there, where they procured a copy of the building code and made comparisons of local and Manchester requirements of builders.

Will Revamp Local Code
Upon its return this committee, of which Councilor Arthur Chretien is chairman, the other members being Messrs. Gallagher, Moriarty, Sadler and Chretien, voted to invite master builders and public building trades to appear in the council chamber on Thursday evening, May 29, to discuss the present building code of the city of Lowell and certain contemplated changes therein. Some wide variations were found in the minimum size requirements of this city and Manchester on the matter of rafters, joists and standing columns, as well as wall thicknesses.

The special committee on bridges, made up of Council President Gallagher, City Engineer Kearney, Councilors McFadden, Dickson and Lambert, viewed the new bridge spanning the Merrimack at South Manchester. Councilor has the matter of placing Central bridge before it for consideration at this time. In a brief business session of the committee at the close of the trip it was voted to go to Springfield next Friday and view the bridge recently constructed in that city.

The Manchester bridge, which cost a little less than a cool million, made a deep impression on the committee. It is much longer than the Central bridge, would be, but certain architectural features impressed the committee.

The standing committee on roads and bridges, of which Councilor J. A. N. Chretien is chairman and Councilors Dickson, Moriarty, Sadler, Chretien, Paul, Fitzgerald and Starnes are members, made a tour of the bridges last night. The Aiken street bridge, which the public service board has decided to strengthen and repair was given particular attention and the roadway found to be in bad shape although the superstructure appears excellent.

Manchester Code Modern
The building code in Manchester was found to be much more modern and liberal than is the Lowell building code, according to Councilor Chretien, himself a builder. One instance is found in the garage requirements over which there is much dispute here. Lowell's code requires a wall thickness of eight inches and for a three-car garage the requirement is 12 inches.

In Manchester 8 inch thickness is sufficient up to a 30-foot span, and no reinforcement is required up to that dimension. The city solicitor is at present engaged in a revision of the city ordinance, among them the building code. The conference with master builders and members of the building trades will be fruitful of many practical suggestions that can be incorporated in recommendations to the city solicitor, it is thought.

Edson School Question
The Edson school matter was taken up briefly by the property committee in its session, which was called to order at 9 o'clock last night. It was voted to request the superintendent of buildings to furnish cost estimates of remodeling the school so as to reduce or remove the present dangers as to sanitation and safety. This action is for the purpose of comparison with the cost of new building.

All in all the city hall was kept quite busy with committee meetings yesterday, the planning board holding a meeting with the city solicitor at 4:30 o'clock, the school board and the mayor entering conference at about the same time, and two city council and the night executive. The meeting of the two council committees, one at 8 o'clock and the other at 9 o'clock, were so arranged because some members of the council were on both committees.

Many Meetings Next Week
The isolation hospital investigation committee, of which Councilor John W. Lutz is chairman, will meet in the mayor's reception room in executive session next Monday night to prepare its report to be submitted to the council. The other members of this committee are Messrs. Fitzgerald, Starnes, Chretien and McFadden.

Auction Sale
GROCERY STORE FIXTURES
Now contained in store, 27 Merrimack Street, Lowell, Mass., next to Gas Appliance Store, to be sold in separate lots next Wednesday, May 22, 1924, at 2 o'clock in the forenoon, by auction, several National cash registers, counter scales, spring balance scales, platform scales, electric coffee mill, large, elegant butter chest, all in splendid condition, and many other fixtures not mentioned. A chance of a lifetime.
WALTER E. GUYETTE, Auctioneer, 53 Central St., Lowell, Mass.

to probe the recent gas rate raise will also meet next Monday night and will use the council committee room. Councilor Dickson is chairman of this committee and is responsible for the naming of the special committee for this purpose.

To Tour Firehouses
The public safety committee, of which Councilor Hennessey is chairman, will make a tour of the firehouses Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The council at its last meeting voted to request Chief Saunders to advise individual members as to what assignments and reassignments will be made in connection with the authorized purchase of $7,500 worth of new apparatus in addition to the $21,000 worth already ordered by the purchasing agent.

The committee expects to check over the chief's plans in this respect and that is one purpose of the tour. In addition the houses will be given a superficial inspection as to general conditions, appearance of personnel and other phases.

The Fuel Ordinance
The committee on charities, of which Councilor McFadden is chairman, is to meet Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock. At 8 o'clock the council will meet and the charities committee will report on the amendment to the charities ordinance proposed by Councilor Fitzgerald. It is the desire of the council that the present method of distributing charity fuel be continued away from the city woodyard, thus throwing several city laborers out of work, and given to a private contractor.

Should the committee report adversely on the amendment, Mr. Fitzgerald is expected to move to substitute the report and has stated he will fight from the floor in an effort that his amendment may prevail. Certain charitable societies are interested in having the new ordinance given effect in its present form and they constitute the opposition to Mr. Fitzgerald's proposal. Superintendent of Charities formerly is allied with Mr. Fitzgerald on the issue.

Inspectors of the state fire marshal's office and the local police detective bureau are conducting an extensive investigation today into circumstances surrounding the origin of a fire and explosion in a Wannalancit street house at 10:45 o'clock last evening.

District Fire Chief Daniel Crowley and Police Lt. Patrick J. Crowley conducted an investigation last evening after the fire was extinguished and found several carbon jugs in a pantry which, it is reported, smelled strongly of gasoline or some other like petroleum product. Two of the jugs were taken to the police station.

This morning Chief Edward F. Saunders and Police Captain David Pettit viewed the premises and laid out a country investigation. They found the case was sufficiently suspicious to warrant an investigation by state authorities. Chief Saunders immediately notified the state marshal's office and received information to the effect that one or two deputies would come to this city this afternoon and, if necessary, conduct a fire inquiry.

The house in which the fire occurred is owned and occupied by Polyzos Georgopoulos. At the time of the fire there was no one in the house and the residents of nearby houses, when questioned this morning, said they had seen no one about the premises during the evening.

The fire evidently started in the cellar or near the head of the cellar stairs, the exit of which is in the pantry where the carbon jugs were found. A sharp explosion, breaking windows throughout the house and frightening passers-by, came the first warning that a fire was in progress. An alarm was sounded from box 127 at 10:45 o'clock. Several chemical lines and one hose line were brought into action by the firemen and within very few minutes the blaze was extinguished. The cellar of the house and furnishings and woodwork in the rooms on the lower floor were considerably damaged by the flames. No estimate of the loss has been made as yet.

chine which struck the Lawrence man in the chest at 9:15 last evening, and caused his death at Lawrence General Hospital. Witnesses at the fatality stated the wheels of Kromer's machine passed over the victim's chest.

The accident occurred at Lowell and Warren streets, when the elderly man attempted to cross the street. Kromer, with two young friends, Bonnie Smith, 15 Nichols street, and Edward Freeman, 10 Central street, both of Lowell, was driving into Lawrence when the mishap took place. The driver claimed he was not going more than 25 miles an hour.

The victim was employed as an overseer in the Everett mills in Lawrence. He was formerly a proprietor of the Brown and Whittier milk, a textile concern once prominent in New England manufacturing circles. He died at 415 Lowell street.

U. S. FLYERS
CROSS PACIFIC
Blazing Trail Never Before
Invaded by Airplane, U. S. Airmen Reach Japan

Land in Ice-Fringed Remote Bay of Paramashiru Island, Kuriles

PARAMASHIRU ISLAND, Kuriles, May 17. (By the Associated Press).—Blazing a trail through skies never before invaded by an airplane, the three United States army world flyers reached this ice-fringed remote bay bordering the Arctic this morning, thereby gaining for their country and themselves the distinction of being the first to have crossed the Pacific by air.

In negotiating the hazardous hop of 575 miles from Attu island, in the Aleutian group, the pilots, Lieuts. Smith, Wade and Nelson fought through chill Arctic winds and snow storms that whipped their faces with freezing icy grains.

Two of the planes landed in Koshikawara bay and the third descended to the water, off the nearby island of Shimshu.

DEVELOPMENT OF HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETICS
Mayor John J. Donovan presided yesterday afternoon at a conference of the school board at which the proposal of furnishing more supervision and assistance in the development of athletic sports in the high school was discussed. No vote was taken, but the consensus of opinion seemed to favor more supervisors of high school athletics, especially in the football season, with an idea to better training and lessening of risks of injury.

Faculty Manager Conway and Headmaster Harris of the high school appeared before the board in its brief session and recommended measures to be given by the board and the appointment of supervisors authorized. The matter was taken under advisement and will likely be discussed at the next regular meeting of the board.

BONUS VETO PUT TO TEST
House Agreement to Vote on Motion to Repass the Measure Today

WASHINGTON, May 17.—President Coolidge's veto of the soldier bonus bill was put to its first test today by the house agreement to vote on a motion to repass the measure. Proponents have argued the expediency of the bill by the necessary two-thirds majority, and the debate was expected, leaders of both sides having made little effort to poll their forces.

Interest in the move to override the veto has centered principally on the senate since the president took his action and the thrust in that chamber is expected to be close. Friends of the bill have claimed enough votes there to assure its repassage when it comes to a vote next week, but polls taken yesterday indicated that three or four switches by supporters might result in sustaining the veto.

Senator Curtis, republican, Kansas, in charge of the bill in the senate, declared yesterday he was relying on a roll made before arrival of the president's message as indicative that the veto would be overridden.
